

*ANNE by the grace of God. of Eng.
Scott. Fr. and Ireland Queen — Possessor of the most noble order of the Garter*

Gal. 4. 4. 4. 4.

A NEW Historical Account
OF St. GEORGE
FOR ENGLAND, AND THE ORIGINAL
Of the most NOBLE ORDER OF THE
GARTER.

Illustrated with CUTTS.

By THOMAS SALMON, M. A.
Rector of Mepsall in the County of Bedford.

LONDON: Printed by R. Faneway, for Nath. Dancer, next St. Dunstan's Church in Fleetstreet, 1704.

46

Advertisement.

TH E Story of St. George runs thorough many Ages, and has had so many various Representations, that it is not possible to come to a good Understanding of it, without knowing all the Concerns of Church and State, to which it has Relation.

That the Reader may please himself in his Opinion, he has all the Circumstances laid before him; which will be of this Advantage, that whatsoever he thinks of St. George, he will not lose his Time in the perusal of so much Authentick History, as this Discourse requires.

THE CONTENTS.

---

PART I.

---

CHAP. I.

THE Honour of killing the Dragon first given to Constantine the Great. Page 1 Paganism subdued is represented by a conquer'd Dragon. 4

The Devil shifts from Paganism to Arianism. 9

Constantine by the Council of Nice overthrows the Dragon a second time. 13

CHAP. II.

GEorge the Arian of Alexandria set up for a Saint. 16

Con-

The Contents.

Constantius maintains Arianism.

Page 18

Athanasius Depos'd, and George made Bishop of Alexandria. 20

Athanasius Accus'd of Murder, and Conjuring by the Hand of Arfenius. 23

George provokes the Gentiles, and is kill'd by them. 28

Epiphanius proves him no Martyr. 30

The Arian Legend of St. George by Vincentius. 37

The Legend of St. George condemn'd by Gelasius and a Council at Rome. 40

Justinian Devoted to Fabulous Saints and Relicks. 42

*Bede gives an Account of St.
George's Story as Apocryphal.* 46

Pope

The Contents.

Pope Zachary's Extravagant Advancement of St. George. Page 49

CHAP. III.

GEORGE, Bishop of Ostia, Legate to England, for the Extirpation of Paganism, and Settlement of Christianity.

51

Pope Adrian sends George of Ostia to Establish the Faith, which Austin had preach'd.

56

Gregory put for George by Foreigners, and a false Print in Sir Henry Spelman has made an Error here Universal.

61

The Council of Cealtide held by George upon the Banks of Severn.

64

The Proem to the Council.

66

Five of the Canons.

70

The Subscriptions of the King of Nor

The Contents.

- Northumberland, of the Nobility and Clergy.* 81
- The Subscriptions of the King of Mercia, of the Nobility and Clergy of the Province of Canterbury.* 84
- Lichfield made an Archbishoprick, and Egfrid Crown'd in this Council held by George.* 86
- The Three Archbishops of Lichfield.* 94
- The Cause of contending for the Archbishoprick at Canterbury.* 97
- Pope Leo restores the Jurisdiction of Canterbury.* 101
- A Monastery Dedicated to St. Austin in Canterbury, and a Chapel to St. George in Oxford Castle.* 106
- The Seven Champions were all Ecclesiastical Persons.* 107

ERRATA.

IN Part II. Page 22. for Auream read
Aureum, Page 64. for Maly read Mal y.

THE CONTENTS.

---

PART II.

---

CHAP. I.

THE Fiction of George of Cappadocia, to cover the Infamous Character of George of Alexandria.

Page 1

The Essentials of Christianity brought hither at the Conversion of the Saxons. 3

Romish Corruptions gradually introduc'd by the Monkish Party. 5

The Ignorance of the Eastern Christians made way for the Legendary Writers. 8

The Golden Legend by Jacobus de Voragine. 11

Nicephorus's Legendary Account of St. George. 15

William of Malmesbury makes the Place of St. George's Martyrdom to be at Rama in Palestine, but of Suspicious Credit. 19

I

Baronius's

The Contents.

Baronius's Account of St. George.	Page 20
Dr. Heylin oblig'd (as he thought) to defend the Memory of George of Cappadocia.	22
Surmises taken from Eusebius.	26
A Citation of St. Ambrose out of the Legendary Authors.	28
Gelasius only supports the Credit of Martyrs in general.	30
No St. George of Cappadocia known in Bede's Time.	32
But the Dedication of Churches in Mercia, and some other Parts, might have been to St. George of Ostia.	36

C H A P. H.

THE Institution of the Garter derived from the Acco unts of St. George in the Holy Land.	38
The Holy War under the Pope's Legate, Anno Domini, 1096.	44
St. George relieves the Christians that were besieg'd at Antioch.	48
St. George leads the Christians to the Scaling of Jerusalem.	50
Malmsbury informs the English of St. George's Miraculous Assistance.	54
Mr.

The Contents.

Mr. Selden's Manuscript, and Mr. Cambden's Translation of it, giving an Account that K. Richard I. invented Garters for his Knights upon the Apparition of St. George.	Page 57
Edward III. makes choice of St. George and the Garter in his Wars against France, as Richard I. had in the Holy Land.	60
Mr. Cambden's Account of Edward III. Instituting the most Noble Order of the Garter.	63
The King's Letters Patents own no St. George of Cappadocia.	69
The Feast of St. George made a double Festival, for encouraging K. Henry V. in his Wars for recovering France.	71

C H A P. III.

OF the Devotions to St. George, and the Opinion the World had of them.

The Emperor Andronicus esteems the Neighing of St. George's Horse oracular.	74
Prayers in the Roman Missal by the Intercession of St. George.	76
	81

A

The Contents.

A Hymn in the Praise of St. George the Martyr.	Page 83
Disputes between the Papists and Protestants concerning St. George.	85
Dr. John Rainold's Address to the Knights of the Garter.	88
Foreigners have Instituted Orders for Conquering the Dragon.	91
Edward III's Statutes against the Dragon of Rome.	95
Regulations in the Order of the Garter by Protestant Sovereigns.	98, 100
The Fundamental Statutes of the Order.	102
The Admonition to the Knights Subjected at their Investiture.	108
A Scheme of the present Knights of the most Noble Order of the Garter in the Year 1704.	114

O

AN

The Emperor Andronicus offers the Veiling of St. George's Horse-Prayers in the Roman Mosaic by the Intercession of St. George.

---

A N Historical Account
 O F
St. George for England.

---

P A R T I.

---

C H A P. I.

The Honour of Killing the Dragon first given to Constantine the Great.

TH E most Renown'd Champion that the World ever had, under the Captain of our Salva-B tion,

tion, was Constantine the Great; either Born in Britain, or at least first saluted Emperor here *. He was rais'd to the Sovereign Power presently after the most terrible Persecution of Dioclesian; when the Devil raged with the fiercest Tyranny that ever he exercis'd over the World. Idolatry then prevail'd over all the Nations, Dæmons were worshipp'd with the most glorious Monuments and Images. At that time all the Churches of the Christians were laid in Ashes, and the more Sacred Temples of the Bodies of the Saints were torn a pieces with the most exquisite Torments.

The

---

* Eumen. Panegy.

Killing the Dragon. 3

The Persecution was so universal as to reach this Island; for though Constantius Chlorus, the Father of our Emperor, had not the devilish Spight and Rage of a Persecutor, yet it was not time for him to appear in the Restraint of those whose Malice was supported by the Laws of the Empire; so that even under his Government the Famous City Verulam was enobled with the Martyrdom of St. Alban. But where the Devil made his farthest Effort, God rais'd up the Deliverer, and made our British Constantine to be the Supreme Patron of his Church all over the World.

Eusebius begins the Third Book of the Life of Constantine with a Comparison between

B 2 the

4 Constantine

the Piety of this Emperor, and the Wickedness of those Persecutors which went before him : How eminently he exalted Christianity, and trampled upon the Principality of Satan. All this is set forth by the Portraiture of Constantine over the Gate of his Palace, and is thus describ'd *:

“ Ο μὲν δὴ καὶ, ἐν γραφῆς ὑψηλοῦ πίνακι “ πρὸ τῶν βασιλικῶν προθύρων ἀνακειμήσω, “ τοῖς πάντων ὀφθαλμοῖς ὁρᾶσθαι προυλίθῃ. τὸ “ μὲν σωτήριον ὑπερκείμενον τῆς αὐτῆς κεφαλῆς “ τῇ γραφῇ παραδόντος. Τὸν δὲ ἐχθρὸν καὶ πο-“ λέμιον θῆρα, τὸν τῷ ἐκκλησίᾳ τῆς Θεᾶς διὰ “ τῆς τῶν ἀθίων πολιορκήσαντα τυραννίδος, “ κατὰ βυθὸς φερόμενον, ποιήσας ἐν δράκον“ τῷ μορφῇ. Δράκοντα γὰρ αὐτὸν καὶ σκολιὸν “ ὄφιν, ἐν προφητῶν θεῶν βίβλοις ἀνηγόρευε τὰ “ λόγια.

There was delineated upon a Table set on high before the Gate of the Royal Palace, that it might be seen by the Eyes of all this Emblem.

The

---

* Euseb. de Vit. Constantin. Lib. 3. Cap. 3.

Killing the Dragon. 5

The Ensign of our Salvation was placed over his Head: But the Enemy, the destructive Beast, which lays Waste the Church of God by the Tyranny of Atheists, he made in the Shape of a Dragon cast down into the Deep. For the Oracles, in the Books of the Prophets of God, call him the Dragon, and the crooked Serpent.

As the Cross was accounted the Sign of our Christian Profession, because upon it the great Work of our Redemption by our Blessed Saviour was wrought; so the Triumph of our Lord over the Enemy of Mankind is represented, by destroying the Devil in that very Figure wherein he had prevail'd to our Universal Destruction.

The Historian proceeds to praise the Emperor for so aptly representing that which had been foretold by the Holy Prophets. In that Day the Lord with his sore, and great, and strong Sword shall punish Leviathan the piercing Serpent, even Leviathan that crooked Serpent, and he shall slay the Dragon that is in the Sea, Isa. 7. 1.

There was so great a Congruity in this Emblem, that it might very well continue in the Memorials of the Church through all Ages. The Serpent was the first Shape in which the Enemy of Mankind appear'd, and therefore ever since the Original Ruin he brought upon us, he is deservedly servedly represented by this Figure.

Killing the Dragon. 7

His most usual Onsets are by smooth Subtilties, and flattering Temptations, which always carry a mortal Sting in their Tail ; and when these have prevail'd so far as to bring the World under his Bondage, then he becomes the Red Dragon, and carouſes in the Blood of his Slaves ; pursuing the soft Vices of Peace, with the severe Fury of War.

Though this malicious Spirit delights in destroying even those that ſerve him, yet his chief Ambition is to enlarge his Dominion, to insult the Church of God, and make those feel the Rage of his implacable Wrath, who would not willingly be subject to his Tyranny.

But then it is that their Great King and Preserver appears: He will not permit his Servants to suffer any more than shall be for his Glory, and their Happiness. How high soever the Enemy is got, he shall fall like Lightning from Heaven, Luke 10. 18.

The Devil was no longer permitted to maintain the Pagan Idolatry by those who were invested with the Authority of God, and ordain'd to be his Ministers. In that Day did Men cast their Idols of Silver, and their Idols of Gold, which they made, each one for himself to worship, to the Moles, and to the Bats, Isa. 2. 20.

There

Killing the Dragon. 9

There was only the short Interval of Julian's Apostacy, wherein the Old Dragon was able to lift up his Head again, and carry on the former Wick- edness by the Worship of Men and Women, who were both cruel and debauch'd, and made their Worshippers like them- selves.

The Serpent must now cast his Skin, change his Shape, and assume a Figure which might be agreeable to the Au- thority of the World. He would not confess, as he was once compell'd to do, That Jesus was the Son of God, Mat. 8. 29. but he would acknow- ledge him to be the Christ, a Divine Person, sent by God, tho' not of the same Essence and Substance with him.

So

So that yielding the Humane Nature of Christ, his Kingdom of Darknes might escape being suppress'd by the Divine; for whilst Men believ'd that there was only a meer Creature come into the World, to shew them an Example of Righteousness, there was no great Danger that the Old Tyrant over Mankind should be dethron'd; nor would there be the least Hope that a Sinner should be saved, since no sufficient Satisfaction could be made to the offended Justice of Heaven by one that was, impar oneri, unable to bear the Sins of the World, and lead his Redeemed to Heaven. This Scheme of new Christian Polity, to defeat the true Religion, on, was immediately advanced upon the Overthrow of Paganism. Arius, a Presbyter of Alexandria, in Egypt, full of this deadly Poison, which the Old Serpent had infus'd into him, by his perverse Interpretations of Holy Scripture, and his Sophistical Subtilties, quickly disperses his Heresie over that Church.

Killing the Dragon.    11

Many of the Presbyters, Deacons, and Holy Virgins, were infected with it; but Alexander, the Bishop of Alexandria, remain'd constant in the Faith: And having a Zeal for the true Religion, first privately admonished Arius, and endeavour'd to reduce him; but finding him obstinate, remov'd him from the Honour and Office which he enjoy'd in that Church.
the

This Contest reach'd the Ears of Constantine, who above all Things desir'd the Peace and Unity of the Church, which were so Dear to our Blessed Saviour; and never suspecting that the Devil, who was so lately suppress'd, should rise again under a Christian Profession; he writes to Alexander * to make up the Difference, and not suffer a Contention about Words to distract the Minds of the People.

This Misapprehension of the Good Emperor, and Neglect of the most Pernicious Heresie, gave it Opportunity to spread over the Cities and Provinces, vinces, and eat like a Canker into the Bowels of the Church.

---

* Socrat. Lib. 1. Cap. 4.

Killing the Dragon. 13

No private Remedy was sufficient for so great a Mischief, and therefore the Bishops were summon'd to the City of Nice, from all Parts of the World, to declare that Faith which had been maintain'd in their Churches, through the Times of their Persecution, and was now to be the Doctrine of the Christian Empire.

The Holy Fathers did so fully express the Sence of the Divine Oracles, by the Consubstantiality of the Son, declaring him to be of the same Eternal Essence with the Father, that the Serpent, with all his Windings and Turnings, ings, was not able to escape from the Hold they had of him.

Here was a new Victory gain'd over this new Stratagem of Satan; the Emperor sends that excellent Confession of our Faith, which was made at Nice, in Bithynia, to the Church of Alexandria*, and to all other Bishops and Christian People, that they might be freed from Error, and acknowledge the same Faith; for that the ensnaring Coverts of the Devil were pull'd up by the very Roots.

He would have them therefore esteem Arius and his Sectaries as great Enemies to the Christian Religion, as Porphry.

Thus

---

* Socrat. Eccles. Hist. Lib. 1. Cap. 6.

Killing the Dragon. 15

Thus the Dragon was slain, the Conqueror had a double Victory over Paganism and Arianism: This was aptly represented by that Figure which Constantine himself had chosen; so that the Allegory of conquering the Dragon spread far, and made such an Impression as could never be lost out of the Memories of Christians.

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

George the Arian of Alexandria set up for a Saint.

TH O' our Supreme Lord be triumphant in the Heavens, and sometimes gives Victories and Triumphs to his Church upon Earth, yet here the State of it must be military and variable ; new Troubles must arise to exercise the Graces of his Saints, and distinguish sincere Christians from those that have not heartily embrac'd the Substantial Doctrines of our most Holy Faith.

Constantine, after he had attain'd the greatest Glory both in Church and State that this World

George the Arian, &c. 17

World could afford, passes to a better, and leaves the Empire divided between his Three Sons, Constantine, Constantius, and Constans; which at last devolv'd wholly upon Constantius, whose Apostacy from the Nicene Faith brought the Christians to as terrible Trials for maintaining Jesus to be the Eternal Son of God against the Arians, as they had suffer'd before for owning him to be their Saviour against the Jews and Pagans.

However the Providence of God suffers the Affairs of the World to go, yet he will in all Ages be present with his Church; and whilst his Enemies are permitted to rage, he raises up Champions, supplies them with Grace, and enables them to maintain his Truth.
C plies

18 George the Arian

Soon after the Council of Nice, Alexander the Bishop of Alexandria dies, and with the greatest Importunity recommends the Church to the Conduct of Athanasius, who had been so zealous in the Defence of it against the Enemies of her Faith, and who was accordingly made Bishop there.

But the Devil, that great Enemy of the Church, never dies ; he finds out new Instruments to carry on his perpetual War against the Servants of Christ through all Generations. Constantius the Emperor gives him Opportunity to execute his Rage ; he revives the Heresie of Arius *, depofes Athanasius, and makes Gregory Bishop of Alexandria; a Wolf inftead of a Shepherd, who having for Six Years infulted over the Flock with greater Cruelty than any Salvage Beast, was flain by the Sheep, and fuffer'd that which was due to his Impiety.
of

Into his Place the † Arians of Alexandria fubftitute George of Cappadocia, whom they moft highly efteem'd, as being both a very active Man, and very zealous for their Opinions. Sozomen does not relate Gregory to have been flain, but only to have been cashier'd by the Arians themfelves, for having

C 2      been

---

* Theodoret. Ecclef. Hiftor. Lib. 2. Cap. 4.

† Sozomen. Ecclef. Hift. Lib. 3. Cap. 6.

20 George the Arian

been too slow in establishing their Doctrine.

How George behav'd himself at Alexandria the Historian gives us an Account * from Athanasius's Apology. George being sent for from Cappadocia by the Arians, came thither in the time of Lent, and executed all those mischievous Attempts which they put him upon.

After Easter the Virgins were put in Prison, the Bishops were led away bound by the Soldiers, the Houses of Widows and Orphans taken from them. The Week after the Holy Feast of Pentecost he proceeded to greater Degrees of Cruelty: The People kept a Fast, and went out to pray in in the Church-yard, because all detested the Communion of George; who presently stirs up Sebastian, a Military Prefect, a Manachee, against them.

---

* Socrat. Eccles. Hist. Lib. 2. Cap. 22.

He comes with his armed Bands, and sets upon the People on the Lord's Day; he kindles a Fire, and brings the Virgins to it, compelling them to make Confession of the Arian Faith: And when he found that they victoriously despis'd the Flames, he tore off their Cloaths, and so whipt them, that they were hardly known by their Friends.

He seized upon Forty Men, and so scourg'd them with sharp Thorns, that they lay under the Hands of the Chi-rurgeons : Many fought Death, to avoid the cruel Torments : Many Bishops and Presbyters were banished, above Thirty Bishops were slain. For George following the Example of Achaab, the Accuser of Athanasius, there was no Care nor Contrivance wanting to drive the Truth out of the World.

22 George the Arian

Nor did the * Arians use greater Force than Fraud, as appears when they accused Athanasius to be at once both a Murderer and a Conjuror. There was one Arsenius, an obscure Bishop in Egypt, whom they hid out of the way, and pretended that Athanasius had put him to Death. They produc'd a dead Man's Hand, which, which, they said, Athanasius had cut off from the Body of Arsenius, and used in his Magical Enchantments. (Though 'tis uncertain whether they kill'd a Man on Purpose, or cut off the Hand of one that was dead before) but for this was Athanasius accus'd, and his Cause was to be heard before Threescore Bishops in the Synod of Tyre.

But Archelaus, a Man of Consular Dignity, hearing that Arsenius was kept privately in the Town, finds him out, seizes upon him, and sends word to Athanasius that he should be of good Courage, for Arsenius was alive, and should be produced as he should think most expedient for his Cause.

The Adversaries of Athanasius brought out the dead Man's Hand before the Council, and then objected the Crime for which this was brought in Evidence. Athanasius having so good a Cause, and such a favourable Discovery, manages it to the best Advantage.

He first ask'd them, Whether they knew Arsenius? Which many of them confess'd that they did. Then he sets Arsenius before them in a Cloak that cover'd both his Arms. They did acknowledge that it was Arsenius, but still thought that one of his Hands might be cut off.

First the one Side of the Cloak was open'd, and they saw one Hand; then the other Side,

Side, and another Hand was shew'd; after which it was demanded where that other Hand grew which Athanasius had cut off?

Notwithstanding all the Piety and Prudence of Athanasius, all the Courage and Patience of the Faithful, Arianism was triumphant so long as the Emperor Constantius liv'd. That Glorious Confessor was banished, and the Orthodox Christians were suppress'd by the weight of the Government. This gave George an Opportunity to insult also over the Remainders of the Pagans, and to give a Lustre to his Sort of Christianity, by exposing the Old Idolatries and Cruelties of the Heathen to the Scorn of the World.

There

26 George the Arian

There was a Place in Alexandria* which then lay in a fordid Condition, but was formerly made use of for celebrating Rites and Ceremonies to the Honour of Mithras, or the Sun. This Place, as useless, Constantius had bestow'd upon the Church of Alexandria, and George would have the Rubbish remov'd, that he might build a Church there.

We have an Account of this from the Gentiles themselves: One of their Historians tells us, That George † Reversus ex comitatu Principis, cum transiret per speciosum Genii Templum, multitudine stipatus ex more, flexis ad ædem ipsam luminibus: Quam diu, inquit, sepulchrum hoc stabit? Re-

---

* Socrat. Lib. 3. Cap. 2.

† Ammian. Marcellin. Lib. 22.

Returning from his Attendance upon the Prince, as he pass'd by the beautiful Temple of the Genius, he fix'd his Eyes upon the House, and said, How long shall this Sepulchre stand?

Our Ecclesiastical Writers relate the demolishing of it: That 'twas rather a Shambles than a Temple. For in the most sacred and secret Part of it were found Sculls both of young and old, whose Entrails the Priests had made use of for performing their Magical Divinations. These he expos'd to publick View in Alexandria, whereby the Heathens were enraged to the highest Degree.

Soon after the time of their Revenge came *; for Julian the * Sozomen. Lib. 5. Cap. 7.

---

28 George the Arian

the Apostate being advanced to the Empire upon the Death of Constantius, the Gentiles that inhabited Alexandria rais'd a Sedition. They made an Uproar against George, and pursued him with such Fury, that if the Tumult had not been suddenly quell'd they had then torn him to pieces; but he was saved by being put in Prison.

However, next Morning very early the Multitude got together, and running to the Prison, there kill'd him: And having set his dead Body upon a Camel, they pursued him all Day with their Reproaches, and at the Evening committed their Trophy to the Flames.

As

As true Christianity had hitherto been honour'd and confirm'd by the Blood of the Martyrs, so Heresie seems now to have the same Advantage.

George was zealous in destroying the Temple of the Idolaters, and in exposing their cruel Worship; for this he lost his Life, and his dead Body was abused by the Rage of the Heathen.

By this did the sly Enemy of the Kingdom of Christ undermine the Foundations of it; advancing the Glory of him who was so outrageous in persecuting those that made Profession of the true Faith. If once the Church of Christ could be brought over to honour him who denied the Divinity of our Saviour,

30 George the Arian

our, and the infinite Merits of his Death, it would be in greater Danger to be ruin'd, than when it was given up to the Malice and Fury of the Pagans.

Tho' this Action of George's, and his Sufferings, were much cried up, and were very glorious among the People, yet Epiphanius will not allow him to have been a Martyr, or to have suffer'd upon this Account.

* Δέξειε δ' αὖτις περὶ τῆς ἑλως
 ' τέλει λευκή, ἐκ οὖν ἐμψύχισεν ὑπὸ Ἑλλη-
 ' νων ταῦτα πεπονθώς; — Οὐκ ἦν δὲ τὸ αἷον
 ' διὰ τῶν εἰς χρῆσιν ὁμολογίαν, ἀλλὰ δ' ἦν ἐν
 ' τῇ ἐκείνῃ οἰκίᾳ ἐπισκοπῇ καλεσμένη πολλὴν βί-
 ' αν τὴν πόλιν τε καὶ τὸν δῆμον διέθετο. But a Man may say upon his dying after this manner, Was he not a Martyr for suffering such Things by the Gentiles?

But

* Torn. I. Lib. 3. Pag. 913. Edit. Paris.

But he did not suffer these Things for the Sake of confessing Christ, but rather for all that Injury and Violence wherewith he had oppressed the City and the People in the time of his pretended Bishoprick.

And indeed the Historian of those Times gives such an Account of him as may well support the Judgment of Epiphanius. Many were his Oppressions and Cruelties which he exercis'd for the Sake of getting Money, being notoriously covetous; many false Suggestions did he make to the Emperor, that he might accomplish his Designs, which are in short thus set before us.

32 George the Arian

‘ Grave * accesserat incentivum, ‘ apud patulas Constantii aures, mul‘ tos incusans, ut ejus recalcitrantes ‘ imperiis : Professionisq; suæ obli-‘ tus, quæ nihil nisi justum suadet ‘ & lene, ad delatorum ausa feralia ‘ desciscebat. His accusing many to the open Ears of Constantius, as kicking against his Government, was a great Incentive : And forgetting his own Profession, which puts him upon nothing but what is just and gentle, he turn’d aside to the nefarious Attempts of the Delatores.

Though the Religion and Morality of George were very well understood by the Judicious, yet having the Externals of a Martyr, and a Faction very zealous to raise his Re-

---

* Ammian. Marcell. Lib. 22.

Reputation, the utmost Endeavours were used to set him up for a Glorious Saint.

This was the next Device of the Serpent to turn himself into an Angel of Light; and under Pretence of Respect to a Christian Martyr, to carry his Cause over the World.

The Christians did always very much honour their Martyrs; not only because their Memory was precious, but because the Commemoration of them excited others to lay down their Lives for the Faith: They wrote the History of their Acts, put the Days of their Martyrdom into the Calendar, and publish'd the Memorials of them in their Churches.

34 George the Arian

This Constantine so much approv'd of*, that when he had subdued the Nations, and shut up the Doors of the Idolatrous Temples, he did not only command his Prefects to see that the Lord's Day should be observed, but that they should have an Honour for those Days which were consecrated to the Martyrs, and celebrate their Solemnities in the Church. All which was done according to the Emperor's Pleasure.

The Arians had now a great Opportunity to intrude into the Christian Festivals; their George had enraged the Heathen, and fell under their Fury, as much as if he had been the best Christian in the World.

---

* Enseb. vit. Constant. Lib. 4. Cap. 23.

World. If therefore his History was but cunningly contriv'd, and the advantageous Turns of a Legend given to it, 'twas not to be doubted but he might go for a Saint in After-ages.

To this Purpose they take that Resemblance which had already got the greatest Reputation in the Christian Church: Killing the Dragon was cried up as the Triumph of our Religion; and if they could but find a Dragon for this George to conquer, the Work would be done.

And this lay fairly in their way, for they had all along made Athanasius a Conjuror: And indeed his great Foresight in Affairs, his Acquaintance with the Councils of

D 2                      God,

36 George the Arian

God, and the Divine Providence so often and so manifestly interposing in his Preservation, made it commonly believ'd that he had a Knowledge more than Humane.

This was commonly said of him by the Heathen, who describe his Understanding in their own way, * ‘Dicebatur ‘enim fatidicarum sortium fidem, ‘quæq; Augurales portenderent a-‘lites, scientissime callens, aliquo‘ties prædixisset futura. He was said to be most highly skilful in the Fatal Lots, and in those Things which the Augural Birds portended: He oftentimes foretold Things to come.

You shall see now what a Story the Arians made of this to

---

* Ammian. Marcell. Lib. 15.

to patch up their Legend, as we find it in a Writer who liv'd in an Age that was dark enough to be cheated with the grossest Absurdities.

Vincentius Bellovacensis gives us this Account of George's Martyrdom *, That when he could not be overcome with any Torture, Dacianus sought out a Magician, because (he said) the Christians were wont to baffle their Tormentors by Magick Art, and now he desir'd to outdo them in their own Way.

At last the Magician Athanasius was found, who undertook to overcome George, or he would lose his Life. Athanasius offers him one Cup of Poison after another ; but all being

D 3 in-

---

* Spec. Histor. Lib. 12. Cap. 128.

38 George the Arian

ineffectual, he forfeited his Head for not making good his Promise.

Thus was George the Conqueror, and overcame the Devil in Athanasius, as they represented it; tho' in Truth their Saint George was himself the Dragon.

This Contrivance of the Arians, in Honour of their Saint, was spread far and near, where-ever their Party prevail'd. It was wrapp'd up in Allegories, that the Poison might not appear, and gilded over with the bright Action of a Martyr destroying the Idolatries of the Heathen, so that many Orthodox Christians receiv'd the Legend, and read it as a Story that conduc'd to the Honour of the Church.

As

As this Arian Legend was creeping about the World, 'twas snapp'd by the Censure of a Council at Rome. * In the Year of our Lord 494, Asterius and Præsidius being Consuls, Gelasius, Bishop of Rome, with Seventy Bishops, held a Council, in which the Sacred and Authentick Books were distinguished from those that were Apocryphal. After the confirming of those which the Church was to receive, they add an Account of those which were not to be received.

In the first Place the Synod of Ariminum, which was congregated by Constantius Cæsar, the Son of Constantine Augustus:

D 4 Then,

---

* Concil. Paris. Tom. 10. Pag. 214.

40 George the Arian

Then, after mentioning many others, they declare

The Epistle of Jesus to King Abgarus, Apocryphal.

The Epistle of Abgarus to Jesus, Apocryphal.

The Suffering of Quiricus and Julita, Apocryphal.

The Suffering of George, Apocryphal.

For which they give this Reason; ‘ Cujusdam Quirici & Julitæ sicut Georgii aliorumq; hujusmodi passiones, ab Hæreticis perhibentur compositæ: Propter quod, ut dictum est, ne vel levis subsannandi oriretur occasio, in sancta Romana Ecclesia non leguntur. The Sufferings of Quiricus and Julita, as of George, and others of this Sort, are set forth, compos’d by Hereticks; for which Cause, as we have said, said, they are not to be read in the Holy Roman Church, that the least Occasion of ridiculing the Service may not arise.

For all this, there was a mighty Propensity in the following Age to multiply Martyrs, and even to reverence those Relicks which were the greatest Impostures. This is evident in so great a Man as the Emperor Justinian, who seems to have been very much pleased with the Variety of new Saints; for Cardinal Baronius tells us*, ‘Justinianum re- ‘novasse Templum St. Thalalæi, ‘St. Georgii & Pantaleemonis ‘Martyrum in eremo Jordanis.
Justinian repair’d the Temple of St. Thalalæus, St. George, and Pan-

---

* Tom. 7. Pag. 161. Ann. Dom. 530.

42 George the Arian

Pantaleemon, the Martyrs, in the Desert of Jordan.

In Thirty Years Time Justinian improv'd very much in his Notions, as we find by the Treatment he gave in the Year 562. to a great French Saint. Their Historian Aimoinus gives us this Account of it †: That St. Germain going to visit the Holy Places about Jerusalem, in his Return was honourably entertain'd by the Emperor Justinian; who desired to testify his Respect to him by making him many Presents. He that was so devoted to God despis'd all the Gold and Silver that was offer'd him; at which Devotion the Prince rejoicing, gave him Part of our Lord's Thorny Crown, some Re-

---

† De gestis Franc. Lib. 3. Cap. 9.

Relicks of the Innocents, together with the Arm of St. George the Martyr, as a great Treasure. These the Pious Saint received as the greatest Obligation ; and when he came home, laid up these Precious Pledges of the Saints in the Church of the Holy Cross, and St. Vincent.

The Itch of Superstition was so catching, that it soon run all the World over, especially having so great Authors for the Encouragement of it: The Devotion of Justinian was enough to bring it into the Menologies of the Greeks ; and the Western Saints returning from the Holy Land with such Precious Relicks, made the Name of St. George to be also receiv'd into the Roman Ca-

44 George the Arian

Calendar. So that from henceforth we have the 23d of April appointed for the Commemoration of him as of a Glorious Martyr. However, his Person was shifted, and the Scene of Action translated from Alexandria to Palestine or Persia, to Cappadocia or Lybia, for shaking off the Arian Ignominy, and the more secure Invention of Fabulous Stories, yet this Natalis St. Georgii Martyris, as Baronius calls it in his Martyrology, has continued the same through all Generations.

'Tis most to our Purpose to see what Reputation it had in England, and of this we may be well inform'd by the Martyrology of Venerable Bede, who leaves out all the Arian Stuff

Stuff concerning the Conjurer Athanasius, and retains only the hidden Myſtery of Alexandria, the Wife of Dacianus, (whereby the City of Alexan- dria was design'd in its State of Arianism) which, after the Interval of Two or Three Ages, was not to be underſtood.

He tells us*, ' IX Calend. Maii.
 ' Natale St. Georgii Martyris, qui
 ' ſub Daciano, rege Perſarum Po-
 ' tentiſſimo, qui dominabatur ſuper
 ' 70 reges, multis miraculis
 ' claruit, plurimoſq; convertit ad
 ' fidem Chriſti, ſimul & Alexan-
 ' driam uxorem ipſius Daciani uſq;
 ' ad Martyrium comfortavit: Ipſe
 ' vero noviffime decollatus martyri-
 ' um explevit. Quamvis geſta paſ-
 ' ſionis ejus inter Apocryphas nume- ' rentur Scripturas. ' That the ' 23d

---

* Bedæ Martyrologi, Pag. 300.

46 George the Arian

‘ 23d of April, or, according ‘ to the Latine Computation, ‘ the 9th of the Calends of ‘ May, was the Birth-day of St.
‘ George the Martyr, who under ‘ Dacianus, the most Potent ‘ King of Persia, that reigned ‘ over 70 Kings, was eminent ‘ for many Miracles, conver‘ ted great Numbers to the ‘ Faith of Christ. He upheld ‘ Alexandria, the Wife of Dacia- ‘ nus, with his Comforts, till ‘ she suffer’d Martyrdom. At ‘ last he himself being Be‘ headed, did also accomplish ‘ his own Martyrdom. But ‘ these Relations of St. George ‘ and his Sufferings are num-‘ bred among the Apocryphal ‘ Writings.

This

This concluding Dash was enough to spoil the Credit of this Relation among the Saxons; who from the Report of their most esteemed Author could only look upon him as an Apocryphal Saint. Besides, the Scene was laid so far off as Persia, that they could have no Confirmation of it, tho' there had been a greater Appearance of Reality: And the whole Transaction at Alexandria was so closely covered under the Fiction of the Empress, that they could not have the least Apprehension of the Original. All which was absolutely necessary, otherwise the Legend would never have been in the least endur'd; for our Ancestors in this Island ever had the

48 George the Arian

the greatest Abhorrence of Arianism.

There never was such an Emperor in Persia as Dacianus, much less one that reign'd over 70 Kings; but to obviate the Odiousness of an Arian Martyr, it was necessary to run the Romance into the furthest Part of the World, with which we had then so little Correspondence, that there was no great Danger of a Confutation.

But of all the Extravagancies we have met with, there is none comparable to that of Pope Zachary's, who in the middle of the Eighth Century honour'd the Memory of St. George at Rome, as if he had been utterly ignorant of the Censure which his Predecessor cessor Gelasius had pass'd, and ventur'd upon the highest Contradiction to History and Reason. We have this Account given us by an Eminent Author in the Church of Rome, who has made the best Collection of the Lives of the Popes. In that of Pope Zachary we find*, 'Basilicam beati Georgii in Velabro condidit, eoq; loci caput ipsius sancti collocavit. He built the Church of St. George in the Velabrum, and there placed the Head of the Saint himself. Strange and Miraculous! † That the Body which was burnt entire, and had its Ashes scatter'd in the Air, should have its Head restor'd,

E and

---

* Platina de vit. Pontif.

† Ammian. Marcellin. Lib. 22. Pag. 241.

50 George the Arian, &c.

and become a Monument of the Roman Devotion. Certainly such a Man sitting in the Temple of God shews himself that he is God, by restoring the principal Part of a Body, after the Dissolution of 400 Years, to its former Consistency.

---

CHAP.

C H A P. III.

George, Bishop of Ostia, Legate to England, for the Extirpation of Paganism, and Settlement of Christianity.

WHen the World had discarded a St. George, of whom they were ashamed, and, rather than lose the Allegory, which had been tack'd to him, were playing with an imaginary Martyr of the same Name, a real St. George arrives in England, and that upon the very Design of killing the Dragon.

And indeed there was too much Occasion for it: For

E 2      tho'

52 George of Ostia, who' the Christian Religion, (which by the Favour of God had been planted in this Island in the Apostles Times) continued under all the Persecutions of the Pagan Emperors, and prevail'd after the Triumphs of Constantine, so long as the Roman Power commanded here; yet was it at last driven into the Mountains of Wales by the Pagan Saxons *, who landed here in the Year 449, and for an Hundred and Fifty Years restor'd the Power of the Dragon in their Heathenish Worship.

In the Year 598, Austin the Monk came over, being sent by Gregory the Great, Bishop of Rome, and planted the Christian Religion first in Kent,

---

* Chronolog. Hen. Savil.

Legate in England. 53

Kent, which by degrees spread over all the Seven Kingdoms; but there was a long Contest before it could prevail. Michael and his Angels fought against the Dragon and his Angels, Rev. 12. 17.

The whole Saxon History is full of these Wars, which were not only for Dominion, but for Religion. Many of the Heathen Princes, but especially the furious Penda, so victoriously subdued the Christians in this Interval of the Contest, that the Prevalence and Settlement of Christianity at last was received with the greatest Joy.

For transacting this great Affair in England, 'twas necessary that one of the greatest Men in the World should be chosen out, and there was none greater under the Pope himself than George Bishop of Ostia.

54 George of Ostia,

Pope Stephen, when he was forc'd in his Calamities to withdraw under the Protection of the King of France in the Year 753, took him along with him as his chief Support.

‘ *Stephanus * Papa ab Aistulpho* ‘ Longobardorum rege dimissus, as- ‘ sumens Georgium Episcopum Osti- ‘ ensem, & Theophylactum Archi- ‘ diaconum, a civitate Pavia mo- ‘ vens, suum in Franciam profectus ‘ est iter. Pope Stephen being dismiss'd by Aistulphus, King of the Lombards, and taking George, Bishop of Ostia, and Arch-deacon Theophylact, along with him, went on his Journey from

---

* Baron. Annal. Tom. 9. Pag. 209.

from the City of Pavia into France.

Cardinal Baronius gives a large Account of him, as having most highly merited of the See of Rome, by being the Pope's Right Hand in his Troubles with the Lombards, in managing his Interest with the Kings of France, and settling the Exarchate of Ravenna upon the Popedom.

When Things were well settled at Rome, in the Year 786, Pope Adrian hearing that the English Saxons had universally received the Christian Religion, sends over his Legates hither to Congratulate the Prevalence of Christianity, and to assist in the more firm Establishment of it among them.

56 George of Ostia.

The principal Person was George Bishop of Ostia; the History of whose coming over hither is given us by Simeon of Durham in these Words*: Tem-

‘pore illo, Legati ab Apostolica sede ‘a Domino Adriano Papa, ad Bri‘tanniam directi sunt, in quibus ‘venerabilis Episcopus Georgius pri‘matum tenuit, qui antiquam inter ‘nos amicitiam & fidem Catho-‘licam, quam sanctus Gregorius ‘Papa per B. Augustinum docuit, ‘innovantes, honorifice suscepti sunt, ‘a regibus & præsulibus, sive a ‘principibus & primatibus hujus ‘patriæ, & in pace domum rever‘si sunt, cum magnis donis, ut ‘justum erat.

At that time Legates were sent from the Apostolick See by the Lord Pope Adrian, among * Edit. Twissden, Pag. 110. Ann. 786.

---

Legate in England. 57

mong which the Venerable Bishop George was Chief; who renewing the Ancient Friendship that was between us, and the Catholick Faith which St. Gregory the Pope had taught by the Blessed Austin, were honourably received by the Kings and Bishops, or the Princes and Prelates, of this Land, and return'd home in Peace, with great Presents, as they had deserv'd.

* Henry, Arch-Deacon of Huntingdon, gives an Account of the same Embassy: That in the Second Year of Brithrick, King of West Saxony (the Predecessor of Egbert, who was the First Monarch of all England) Pope Adrian sent his Legates into Britain to renew the

58 George of Ostia,
the Faith which Austin had Preach'd. They were honourably receiv'd both by Kings and People, and by the Merciful Assistance of Christ, established it upon a firm Foundation. And adds,
'Tenuerunt autem concilium apud
'Cealtide, ubi Jambert dimisit
'partem Episcopatus sui: ibi etiam
'Higebrit electus est ab Offa rege.
They held also a Council at Cealtide, where Jambert did forego part of his Bishoprick, and where Higebrit was chosen by King Offa.

* Roger de Hoveden confirms the same Piece of History in Two Places: First, He gives us an Account that in the Year 786, the Venerable Bishop
George

Legate in England. 59

George was the Principal Ambassador, whom Pope Adrian sent into Britain for confirming the Ancient Amity and Catholick Faith. And then that it was in the Second Year of Brithrick, King of West Saxony, * that the Ambassadors were sent to renew the Faith which Austin had preach'd; that they then held the Council at Cealtide, where Jamber had his Bishoprick dismembred, and where the Election of Higberit was made by King Offa.

It is necessary to be thus punctual in setting down the Relations of our English Writers, because of a mischance in our Church History, which has been taken from Foreigners, and so diversified, that

60 George of Ostia,
that we have lost both the Name of the Place where this great Council was held, and of the Principal Agent in such a considerable Transaction.

Sir Henry Spelman not finding the Canons of this Council in any of our Manuscripts here in England, takes it ver- batim from the Magdeburgenses, and presents us with this Title. * ‘ Concilium Calchuthen- se Legatinum & Pananglicum a Gregorio Ostiensi & Theophy- lacto Tudertino Episcopis & Le- gatis Adriani Papæ, Anno gratiæ 787, Caroli regis Franciæ 19,
Calchuthæ celebratum.

This learned Author was dissatisfied with the making Gregory Bishop of Ostia at that time,

---

* Concil. Edit. 1. Page 291.

Legate in England. 61

time, when all the Authors of this Nation, (who had most reason to know the Name of their Legate) call him George; he does therefore add, 'Præfidenti e Legatis Gregorio Ostiensi Episcopo, quem Hovedenus & alii Gregorium nuncupant. Where by an unhappy false Print Gregorium is plainly put for Georgium, or else it cannot be Sense; and this has so darkned the History, that this George is not taken notice of by any of our Modern Writers.

As for the Place of the Council, he never ventures so much as to guess at it, but, as if he was sending out a Hue and Cry, gives us a multitude of Names, that possibly some Body may light upon it.

Sessionis

62 George of Ostia,

‘ Sessiois Locus, cui hoc ascribi- ‘ tur Concilium, varie apud Au- ‘ thores appellatur Chalchuth, Cal- ‘ chuth, Celchyth, Cealtide, &c.
 ‘ Ponitq; eum Author antiquitatum ‘ Britan. Eccles. in Northumbria, ‘ Hollenshedus vero rectius in reg- ‘ no Merciorum.

But if we keep close to the Writers of our own Nation, we shall avoid the Error, and not have far to seek for the Truth. As to the Name of the Person, it may be of use to us to take notice of the Admonition of Baronius, as being of Concern not only in this, but other Pieces of History. * ‘ Admonendus Lector, Mag- ‘ nas inter Scriptores veteres repe- ‘ riri abortas ambages, dum inter- ‘ dum apud eos Georgius pro Grego- ‘ rio,

---

* Tom. 3. Page 516.

Legate in England. 63

‘rio, vel Gregorius vice versa pro
‘Georgio ponitur. Which certainly deserves taking notice of, since the great Edition of the Councils at Paris has the very same Error with the Old Magdeburgenses.

As to the Name of the Place, let us keep to the Old English Name Cealtide: Though the Town be ruin’d and lost, yet the signification of the Word will tell us whereabouts it stood. * Ceol in the English Saxon Language signifies Navis, & Tid æstus Mari-nus; ’twas a Town to which the Tide flow’d, and where the Ships came up. It was undoubtedly in Mercia, because Offa Subscribes to the Council there, and no Name of * Skinner’s Etymolog. Celrick.

---

64 George of Ostia,

of any other King is added to it ; but because we find the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Bishops of the Southern and Western Parts of England, met together, with all the Nobles and Senators, it is very probable they were favoured with some Place in the Kingdom of Mercia, which might be most convenient for them : Especially since Kinulph, King of the West Saxons, did himself meet with the Legates when they first came over, and was to send his Clergy to them.

So that taking a Maritime Town in the Kingdom of Mercia, near West Saxony, it must be somewhere towards Bristol, upon the Banks of Sabrina, or Severn; which may be

Legate in England. 65

be the Reason, (if the idle Romance of the Seven Champions has any Foundation) why that Author call'd the Virgin, which was deliver'd by St. George, by the Name of Sabra.

That the great Transactions of this Council may be more certainly known, here shall be added the Rescript of the Legates to Pope Adrian, giving an Account how they first went into the Kingdom of Northumberland, and made a Settlement there: After which they finish'd their Work in Mercia: The Canons are Twenty in all, but here are only Five of the most considerable for the settling Christianity, and extirpating Paganism. The rest may

F be

66 George of Ostia, be seen by the Curious in Sir Henry Spelman.

---

The Proem of the Legates in the Council of Calchythe to Pope Adrian.

WE cheerfully obeying your Commands, and being assisted by your holy Prayers, set forwards upon our Journey; but the Enemy rais'd a contrary Wind, till he whom the Winds and Seas obey, for the Sake of your Intercession, smooth'd the Seas, and brought us safely into the Haven: We were toss'd with many Storms, but at last, without any Damage, we were brought safe to the Shores of England. We

Legate in England. 67

We were first received by Jainbarth, Archbishop of the holy Dorovernian Church, otherwise called Canterbury, where the holy Austin deposited the remains of his Body: There we tarried till we had given Order for those things which were necessary.

From thence we went to the Court of Offa, King of the Mercians; he entertain'd us with the greatest Joy; and for the Reverence he bore to St. Peter and your Apostolate, he receiv'd those Instructions we brought from the Principal See with Honour.

Then Offa, King of the Mercians, and Kinulph, of the West Saxons, met together in Council; to the latter we also deliver'd your holy Writings:

68 George of Ostia,

They presently engag'd to correct all those Vices which were mentioned in them.

Then advising with the foresaid Kings, the Bishops, and Chief Men of the Nation, we consider'd that the Country is extended far and wide; upon which Account we permitted the Venerable Bishop Theophylact to attend upon the King of the Mercians, and the Parts of Britain, whilst I took along with me the Presbyter and Abbot Wigbod, a Person of approv'd Fidelity, whom your most Excellent Son Charles, out of Reverence to your Apostolate, sent along with us. I came into the Country of the Northumbrians to King Oswald and Eanbald, Archbishop of the holy

Legate in England. 69

holy Church of York. The King resided very far off in the Northern Parts, but the Archbishop sent his Messenger to him, and he with all Joy readily appointed a Day for the Council ; to which all the Chief Men of that Country came, both Ecclesiastical and Civil.

There it was related in our Audience, that many other Vices, and those none of the least, stood in need of being corrected. Because, as 'tis well known, that from the Time of the holy Bishop Austin no Roman Legate was sent hither, till we arriv'd.

We writ down the Heads of every thing in particular, and discours'd thereof in order in their Hearing; they

70 George of Ostia, with great Humility and free Consent embrac'd your Admonition, and our weak Endeavours, promising that they would be Obedient in all things.

Then we deliver'd to them your Letters to be read, maintaining that both they and their Subjects ought to observe the Sacred Decrees.
And these are they which we brought to them, to be observ'd.

I. *That the Nicene Faith be maintain'd; That the Presbyters be yearly examin'd in it;
And that all hold the Six General Councils.*

First of all Admonishing, that the holy and uncorrupted

Legate in England. 71

ted Faith of the Nicene Council be faithfully and firmly maintain'd by all those that are devoted to the Worship of God: And that every Year the Presbyters of particular Churches, who are to instruct the People, be diligently examined by the Bishops in their Synodical Assemblies concerning that Faith: So that they may both maintain and preach, and always confess the Apostolical Doctrine, and universal Faith approved by the Holy Ghost in the Six Councils; that if Occasion require they may not be afraid to die for it: That those whom the Universal Councils have receiv'd, they may receive; and those whom they have condemn'd,

72 George of Ostia,
may be cordially condemn'd and rejected.

II. That Baptism be Administred according to the Canons : And what is the Duty of a Godfather.

In the Second Capitular we have taught, that Baptism be Administred according to the Canonical Decrees: And unless in the Case of great Necessity, at the appointed time. That all generally understand the Creed and the Lord's Prayer.
That all those who receive Infants from the Holy Font, and answer for those who are not able to answer for themselves, concerning the renouncing Satan, his Works and Poms, as well as their belief

belief of the Faith, do know that they are their Bondsmen to the Lord by that Engagement, until the Children come to perfect Age; to teach them the foresaid Lord's Prayer and Creed: Which if they do not perform, a strict Account will be requir'd of them, because they promised to God for those who were not able to speak for themselves. Therefore we universally command that all the Common People keep this in remembrance.

III. That the Bishop holds a Synod twice in every Year, and once goes about his Diocess, reproving and restraining their Sins.

In the third Discourse we in-

74 George of Ostia,

insisted upon the holding of 2 Councils every Year, according to the Canonical Institutions ; that as good Husbandmen they may root up the Suckers and growing Thorns out of the Hearts of Offenders. That every Bishop go about his Diocess once every Year, that he diligently appoint Meetings in convenient Places, where all may come together to hear the Word of God ; lest any one wandering in the Deserts of Ignorance, by the Negligence of his Pastor, should be devoured by the Jaws of the roaring Lion. That with a diligent Care he preach to and confirm the Flock committed to his Charge. That he separates the Incestuous, restrains

Legate in England. 75

restrains all manner of Conjurers and Sacrilegious Persons, and destroys all Vice. Let none seek to feed the Flock committed to him for filthy Lucres Sake, but for hope of the Eternal Reward, &c.

XIX. That every one cast away the Relicks of Pagan Rites.

Under the Nineteenth Head we added, That every faithful Christian should set before him the Example of True Catholicks; and that if any thing remain'd of Pagan Superstition, it should be pluck'd up, contemn'd and cast away. For God created Man with an excellent Form and Gracefulness; but the Pagans,

76 George of Ostia,

Pagans, by a Devilish Instinct, have brought in their black Deformities. According to Prudentius,

He stain'd the harmless
- Clay with nasty Spots.

He does an Injury to God, who corrupts and defiles his Creature. Certainly, if any one for God's sake suffer an Injury which the Corruption of Man would cast upon him, great shall be his Reward: But whosoever, out of an Heathenish Superstition, shall do it, let him know it shall be of no Advantage to his Salvation; no more than the Circumcision of a Jew's Body was whilst he remain'd an Infidel in his Heart.

You do also wear your Garments after the Fashion of those

Legate in England. 77

those Infidels, whom, by the help of God, the Arms of your Fathers have driven out of the World. A strange and amazing thing! That you should imitate the Examples of those whose Lives you always hated.

After a vile manner also you maim your Horses, you slit their Noses, you couple their Ears, so that you make them deaf; you cut off their Tails: You might have them without blemish, but you chose rather to make them despicable to all People.

We have also heard, that when there is any Controversie among you, you cast Lots after the manner of the Gentiles; this always was accounted a piece of Sacrilege.

There

78 George of Ostia,

There are also many among you that eat Horses, which none of the Christians in the East ever do: Avoid this also: Endeavour to do all things that are honourable, and according to the Will of God.

XX. Of Conversion, Penitence, and Confession.

The Twentieth Head. We have declar'd to all, That they endeavour to follow the Advice of the Prophet, which says, Don't delay your Conversion to the Lord, nor put it off from Day to Day. And in another Place, Turn to me with your whole Heart, in Fasting, Weeping and Mourning. Again, Turn unto me and I will turn to you.
And

Legate in England. 79

And according to the Apostle, Confess your Sins one to another, and pray for one another, that you may be saved. That none of you (which God forbid) may be surpriz'd unprepared, by a sudden Death. According to the Judgment of the Priests, and the Measure of the Fault, receive the Eucharist, and bring forth Fruits meet for Repentance, that is, a fruitful Repentance, which bewails the Sins committed, and will no more commit those which have been so bewail'd.

But if any one (which God forbid) depart this Life without Repentance and Confession, such an one is by no means to be pray'd for. There is none of us without Sin, not an Infant of a Day Old;

as

80 George of Ostia,

as the Apostle intimates, If we say we have no Sin, we deceive our selves, and the Truth is not in us; Repent therefore, and be converted, that your Sins may be blotted out; for Death makes no delay; that so you may be worthy to enjoy an endless Life with the Holy Angels, through him who liveth and reigneth for ever.

These Decrees, most Blessed Pope Adrian, we proposed in Publick Council in the Presence of King Alfwald, Archbishop Eanbald, and all the Bishops and Abbots of the Country, before the Senators and Dukes, and the People of the Land: And they (as we said before) devoted themselves to the entire Observance vance of them, with all Humility of Mind to do their utmost by the Assistance of Divine Grace. Confirming all to us in your stead, by Subscribing with the Sign of the Cross to the Paper.

Legate in England. 81

Alfwald, King of the Nation beyond Humber.

Dilbert, Bishop of the Augustan Church.

Eanbald, by the Grace of God Archbishop of the Holy Church of York.

Higwald, Bishop of Lindisfern.

Adilbert, Bishop of Candenſis Casa.

Aldulph, Bishop of the Magian Church.

Athelwin, Bishop by Proxy.

Gositha, a Nobleman.

G

To

82 George of Ostia,

To these most Salutary Admonitions, the Presbyters and Deacons of the Churches, the Abbots of Monasteries, the Judges, Chief Officers, and Noblemen, did also with One Mouth Consent, and One Act Subscribe.

Alrich, Duke. Sigulph, Duke.
Aldberich, Abbot. Erhart, Abbot.

These things being perform'd, and the Benediction given, we went on, taking with us those Eminent Persons, Malvin and Pyttel, Lectors, who were Ambassadors of the King and the Archbishop. They bore us Company in our Journey, and carried along with them these Decrees into the Council

Legate in England. 83

cil of the Mercians; where the glorious King Offa, with the Senators of the Land, together with Janbert, Archbishop of the Holy Doroverian Church, and other Bishops of these Regions, were met.

Every particular Head was read before the Council with a loud Voice, and clearly explain'd both in the Latin and Teutonick Languages, that all might understand. Then with unanimous Consent and joyful Minds they all return'd Thanks, and oblig'd themselves to the Admonitions of your Apostolate; promising that (the Divine Favour assisting them) they would, to the utmost of their Power, with a most ready

84 George of Ostia,
Will in all things observe these Statutes.

Moreover, according to the former Engagement, both the King and his Princes, the Archbishop and his Companions, did confirm to us as your Legates this Paper, by their Subscriptions with the Sign of the Holy Cross.

Janbert, Archbishop of the Holy Dorovernian Church.

Offa, King of the Mercians.

Hugibert, Bishop of the Church of Lichfield.

Edulphus Lindensis, Faronensis, Episcopus. Ununona Legorensis, Episcopus. Alchardus, Episcopus.
Fadberchus, Episcopus. Cumberchus, Episcopus. Harchelus, Episcopus. Aine, Episcopus. Tora, Episcopus. Waremundus, Episcopus.

Legate in England. 85

pus. Adalmundus, Episcopus.

Adoredus, Episcopus.

Edrabode, Abbot. Alemund,

Abbot. Bodwinus, Abbot.

Uttel, Abbot.

Brorda, Duke. Facwaldus,

Duke. Bercoaldus, Duke.

Othbaldus, Count.

Besides what we have here read of this great Council, which our George held for the Establishment of Christianity, and Extirpation of Paganism, we have an Account of Two other Eminent Actions done (as Sir Henry Spelman thinks) in a Second Session of it, though not related in the Tomes of the Councils.

Matthæw of Westminster, under the Year 789, does not only acquaint us with A-

86 George of Ostia,

drian's Legation, to renew the Faith preach'd by Austin, and of the Honourable Reception of those he sent by the Kings and People of England; but he adds, That 'when 'they held the Council of ' Calthuthe, Jambert, Archbi- 'shop of Canterbury, resign'd 'part of his Bishoprick to the 'Archbishop of Lichfield. And 'besides, in that Council also ' Offa, the most Potent King 'of the Mercians, made his 'Eldest Son Egfrid to be so- 'lemnly Crown'd, who be- 'ing a Young Man, most 'Pious and Nobly inclin'd, 'reign'd together with his 'Father as long as he liv'd.

This Coronation, without doubt, very much advanced the Solemnity of the Council,

cil, but the Alteration in the Archbishoprick did so disgust the rest of the Kingdoms, that however it was then carried by the Authority of Offa, and the prevailing Power of the Mercians, it afterwards was call'd the Litigious Synod.

*' Rex Merciorum Offa contractis
' inimicitis cum Cantuaritis, Jam-
' bertum Archiepiscopum Primatu
' spoliare conatus est; missis Epi-' stolis ad Adrianum Papam sate-
' git, ut pallio Lichfieldensem Epis' copum contra morem antiquum
' efferet, & Jambertus in Synodo
' litigiosa, quæ apud Chealbite
' celebrata est non modicam suæ ' Parochiæ perdidit portionem. Gervasius Acl. Pontif. Cant. in vita Jamberti. Page 1641.
Edit. Twisden. Henry, the Arch-Deacon of Huntingdon, also G 4 adds,*

88 George of Ostia,

adds, Lib. 4. Pag. 197. Edit. Savil. ' Ibi etiam Higebrit ele-' Etus est ab Offa rege.

The Occasion of this Alteration in the Archbishoprick Sir Henry Spelman gives us from a Manuscript Book of the Life of King Offa, belonging to the Monastery of St. Albans, and since publish'd with the Additaments of Matthew Paris; those Monks having been most concern'd to preserve the Memory of their Founder; and they give it us as follows: When Offa was grown too Great and Powerful for the rest of the Princes of the Heptarchy, they apply'd themselves to Charles, King of France, afterwards Emperor, that he would take them into his Protection, and defend them from the
En-

Encroachments of this Overgrown Potentate. This at first raised great Quarrels between Charles and Offa; but they being at last reconcil'd, and Offa, strengthen'd by an Alliance with this most Potent Prince of Europe, he feared neither the Rebellion nor Treachery of his Enemies; but enjoying Peace, he took upon him the Care of a Religious Prelate, and Ecclesiastical Pastor; his Study was to put the Sees of Cathedral Churches into better Order, and to make some Advantageous Changes in them, which he well knew how to bring to pass.

Lambert, Archbishop of Canterbury (for so he is here call'd, Fainbertus being in pro-

90 George of Ostia,

process of Time chang'd to Jambertus, and now Jambertus into Lambertus) had many heavy Accusations laid against him before King Offa. One was, That Canterbury was too much in the Neighbourhood of Charles's Dominions, which lay upon the Sea ; and that before the late Alliance was made, the said Lambert had promised Charles, That if he came to Invade Britain in a Hostile Manner, he should have free admittance into his Archbishoprick, his Favour and Assistance. Besides, King Offa was of this Persuasion, That where he had gloriously triumph'd over his Enemies, there, or near that Place, the Cathedral Church ought to be advanced to the Archiepiscopal Dignity. In

In pursuance of this Design, King Offa sent to Pope Adrian, who then presided over these Affairs, and to whom this Prince was most Dear for his Eminent Piety. His Ambassadors were Prudent and Eloquent Men, very well deserving Respect and Favour; besides, that they made their Way by carrying good Donatives along with them; for the King was not ignorant of the Desires of the Romans.

The Royal Request was, and some Gifts (which were then presented) prevail'd, that contrary to the ancient approved Custom, the Pope would please to Constitute Aldulph Archbishop of Lichfield, that all the Provinces of the Mercians

92 George of Ostia,
cians might be subject to this Prelate.

The Names of the Provinces and Bishops are these.

Kenebert, Bishop of Worcester.

Werebert, Bishop of Leicester.

Adulph, Bishop of Sidnacester.

Wulward, Bishop of Hereford.

The Bishops of the East Angles.

Harald, Bishop of Elmham.

Tedford, Bishop of Dunwich.

Thus was the Primacy divided, or rather dissipated, the Archbishop of Canterbury not so firmly opposing the King's Resolutions as he ought to have done.

There

Legate in England. 93

There remain'd subject to this Prelate Lambert, the Bishops of London, Winchester, Rochester and Shirburn.

How much of Truth there was in the Accufation of Archbishop Lambert's Loyalty we cannot be fure; but we find that in the Subscription to the Council of Calcuthe, he placed his Name before King Offa, though Eanbald, Archbishop of York, had fubfcribed after Alfwald, King of Northumberland; which difcovers either an intolerable Prefumption in Lambert, or elfe fuch a Pofture of Affairs as well deferv'd Offa's Regulation. His Reason for fettling the Primacy at Lichfield was that which had prevail'd all the World over; for where-

94 George of Ostia,

where-ever there was the Capital of Civil Government, there was also the Capital of the Ecclesiastical; 'twas proper that the Church should be under the Wing of her Royal Defender. There the Metropolitan had at the same time an Opportunity to promote the Spiritual Interest, and to have under his Eye such as were employed in the most important Administration of Divine Things.

But this Alteration did not continue long; we cannot go beyond the Succession of Three Archbishops of Lichfield. Higbert Subscrib'd only as Bishop of Lichfield to the First Session of the Council of Calchuthe; though Huntingdon tells us he was in that Council

Legate in England. 95

Council chosen Archbishop by King Offa. He died soon after, and we find by the History that the King Addressed Pope Adrian to Constitute his Successor Aldulph Archbishop of Lichfield, who was the first that obtain'd the Pall. After whom we have Humbert, in the Year 793, as appears by the Title of the Provincial Council of Verulam, Celebrated under Offa, King of the Mercians, and Humbert, his Archbishop of Lichfield; which we find not only in Sir Henry Spelman, but in the Parisian Tomes of the Councils.

The first Constitution of the Primacy of Canterbury made all those that were most zealously devoted to the See of

96 George of Ostia,

of Rome very uneasie under the late Alteration; as we may be sure by the Reason of the first Establishment; which is thus given us by one of our most Eminent English Historians. ' That
' Austin was the first Arch' bishop of Canterbury, the Di' ciple of Gregory the Great, as ' is well known: But that ' Gregory granted to Austin the ' Pall and Privilege of the ' Archbishoprick for the City
' of London, as in the first ' Book of the Regal Affairs
' we shew'd by Kenulph's Epi' stle; for at that time the ' Knowledge of that other ' City being obscure, had not ' reach'd the Romans. How' ever, he being obliged by ' the Kindness of the King
' that entertain'd him, and
' the

‘ the Affection of the Citi‘ zens, took up his Habita‘ tion at Canterbury: Fifteen ‘ Years he liv’d and enjoy’d ‘ his Thronethere, and being ‘ dead, honoured it with his ‘ Sepulchre: So that all the ‘ Dignity was for ever after ‘ translated thither. Malmsb. de gestis Pontificum Anglor. Lib. I.

There is nothing more known than the Enmity which the Saxons had against the British Christians; because those who had receiv’d their Religion from the Apostles, would not fall under all the Ordinances of Rome; and therefore as they were driven into the Mountains of Wales, that the New Inhabitants might enjoy their Lands; so the ancient Constitution H of

98 George of Ostia,

of the Church must now be utterly overthrown, lest they should seem to derive their Christianity from any other Fountain than that of Rome; which was the true Reason of contending for the Archbishoprick at Canterbury, rather than (as it anciently was) at London, or now at Lichfield. The Opportunity of restoring Canterbury to all that King Offa had taken away was now come: For his Son Egfert did not survive him above Four Months, and Kenulph succeeded upon the Throne of Mercia, who was so far removed from his Relation to Offa, that he claim'd only in the Fifth Generation from Henwalch, who was the Brother of Penda. Malmsbur.

de

Legate in England. 99

de gest. Reg. Angl. fol. 13. Edit. Savil.

Kenulph coming to the Crown, which was at such a distance from him, was not only willing to oblige the Roman Interest in his Favour, but especially to gratifie the Kingdom of Kent, which he design'd to bring entirely under his Dominion: for we find in his Donations to the Church of Canterbury, that he stiles himself King of Kent. Evid. Eccl. Chr. Cant. P. 2215. Edit. Twisden. And really made himself so, by carrying away King Ethelbert Pren his Prisoner, Malmsb. Lib. 1.

So that to make a full Restitution of the Archbishoprick, he sends Athelard, the Successor of Lambert, to Pope

100 George of Ostia,

Leo with very submissive Letters, entreating the Settlement again of the Primacy at Canterbury, because the Sublimity of Rome was the Prosperity of England, that where his Apostolical Dignity arose, thence was our Faith to be derived.

The King also sets forth, that by the best Information he could get from his Prelates, according to the Canons and Apostolical Statutes, which were left by St. Gregory, the Authority of the Dorobernian Metropolitan ought to be entire over Twelve Bishopricks, as the Archbishopricks of London and York had formerly been; whereas of late this of Canterbury had been divided into Two Parts: He sends

Legate in England. 101

sends therefore his Ambassadors, and 120 Mancuses, to obtain his Favour.

Pope Leo so fully answers his Desires, that he Establishes Athelard in the Jurisdiction of his Predecessors; and that if any of those that were Subject to him, either Kings, Princes, or People, should disobey his Commands, he should be Excommunicated till he repented; and if he remain'd Impenitent, he should be as an Heathen Man and a Publican; as appears by the Rescript of of Leo III. recited at large by Malmsbury, De gest. Reg. Ang. Lib. I.

This entirely overthrew the whole Frame of Church-government Establish'd by H 3 King

102 George of Ostia,

King Offa, and brought the Synod of Calchythe under Disgrace, which was once so glorious; the Legates whereof had been highly carels'd and presented both by Kings and People.

For there was all along in this Nation a deadly Feud between the Seculars and Regulars, those that maintain'd the Interest of the Church in this Kingdom, and those that would enslave it to the Usurpations of Rome: Their Quarrel was not only about Spirituals, whether the Monastick Profession was to be preferr'd, and the People should give up themselves to those who by their Devotions would excuse them from the trouble of being con-

Legate in England. 103

concern'd about their own Salvation, which living or dying they would procure for them; but about Temporals, who should enjoy the Endowments and Revenues of the Church: And the Robberies which were then committed are sadly felt at this Day.

The Regulars in process of Time gain'd an entire Ascendant, so that what made most for the Dominion of Rome, everywhere prevail'd, inso-much that this Great Council, upon which our chief Transaction depends, was not only overthrown, but lost: Sir Henry Spelman, who gives us others from Copies found in England, is forc'd to borrow this from the Mag-
H 4 deburgenses;

102 George of Ostia,

King Offa, and brought the Synod of Calchythe under Disgrace, which was once so glorious; the Legates whereof had been highly carels'd and presented both by Kings and People.

For there was all along in this Nation a deadly Feud between the Seculars and Regulars, those that maintain'd the Interest of the Church in this Kingdom, and those that would enslave it to the Usurpations of Rome: Their Quarrel was not only about Spirituals, whether the Monastick Profession was to be preferr'd, and the People should give up themselves to those who by their Devotions would excuse them from the trouble of being con-

Legate in England. 103

concern'd about their own Salvation, which living or dying they would procure for them; but about Temporals, who should enjoy the Endowments and Revenues of the Church: And the Robberies which were then committed are sadly felt at this Day.

The Regulars in process of Time gain'd an entire Ascendant, so that what made most for the Dominion of Rome, everywhere prevail'd, inso-much that this Great Council, upon which our chief Transaction depends, was not only overthrown, but lost: Sir Henry Spelman, who gives us others from Copies found in England, is forc'd to borrow this from the Mag-
H 4 deburgenses;

104 George of Ostia, daburgenses ; and can acquaint us with no more of it than what he learn'd from them.

With this also fell the Reputation of our George, of whom we can find no Monuments, except in the Kingdom of Mercia, till the Glorious Fiction of the Eastern St. George was brought from the Holy Land, and again gave Renown to that Name.

But still we have Evidence of a Chapel Consecrated to him before our Nation was engaged in the Holy War, which made a fighting St.
George most acceptable to them.

As our George of Ostia was Second to Archbishop Austin in his Legation from Rome, and Triumph'd in the Successful Accom-

Legate in England. 105

Accomplishment of that Christianity which he had begun; so he had something of the same Honour paid to him as was given to the first Founder.

As we find a Monastery Dedicated to St. Austin at Canterbury, so we find a Chapel Dedicated to St. George at Oxford. Indeed that * Monastery bore the Name of St. Peter and St. Paul, as well as St. Austin the Apostle of the English; but the Memory of the Two Old Apostles was swallowed up by the Renown of the New One.

But as the Chapel of St. George was built to his Honour, we find it entirely Dedicated to his Name through all its Mutations. In * Chronolog. August. Twisden.

---

106 George of Ostia,

In the Year 1071, * a Castle was built at Oxford by Robert de Oily, and in the Year 1074, the Church of St. George was founded in that Castle for Secular Canons, with very considerable Revenues. Afterwards this Church of St. George, with all its Appurtenances, was given to the Regular Canons of Oseny, which had belong'd to the Secular Canons in the Castle of Oxford. Oseny Register, fol. 1.

Neither this Church, nor any other Church here in England, is exprefly Dedicated in the Name of St. George of Ostia; yet he fucceeding in the Establishment of that Religion which the Renown'd St. Austin preach'd, may very well well go for the Patron of the Nation.

---

* Kenner's Paroch. Antiq. Page 59.

Legate in England. 107

And this is agreeable to the Practice of that Age ; for the Patrons of Countries were not Eminent Soldiers, who had fought the Enemy with Sword and Spear, but some great Church-Worthies who had advanced the Trophies of Religion.

Such was the Choice of the Nations : St. Dennis for France, St. James for Spain, St. Anthony for Italy, St. Andrew for Scotland, St. David for Wales, St. Patrick for Ireland, and of the same Sort is our St. George for England.

St. Patrick was sent by Pope Celestine to be Apostle and Bishop of the Irish ; * his Natalis

---

* Malmshur. de gest. Pont. Lib. 2.

108 George of Ostia,

talis is upon the 16th of the Calends of April, and put into all the Martyrologies, though he was not the first that preach'd the Christian Faith in Ireland, but the Principal Person by whom it prevail'd. Usher. Primord. Britan. Eccles. Pag. 820.

After the same manner might our Patron be chosen, and the Old Allegory take Place in the English Nation: The Church of Christ was that Virgin which had been long in danger of being devour'd by the Dragon, Christianity had been often attack'd and put to flight by the Heathen, but was now by our Saint happily established.

This

Legate in England. 109

This George, who was sent over to finish all, might well be represented by a Conquering Knight; for since the War was Spiritual, the Bishops were the proper Champions in it.

---

The End of the First Part.

Legate in England. 100

This George, who was to finish all might well represented by a Conductor Knight: for since the War was the shops were tions in

S
—
—
T
—
V
—
c e

---

A N

Historical Account

O F

St. George for England.

---

---

P A R T II.

---

C H A P. I.

The Fiction of George of Cappadocia; to cover the Infamous Character of George of Alexandria.

WE have seen in the former Part of this Discourse that Austin was called the Apostle of the English,

K

be-

because he brought the Christian Religion among the Pagan Saxons; and then for the same Reason that other Nations chose their Patrons, George of Ostia deserves the Title of Patron of England: After the Gospel had been preach'd, and prevail'd here over Kings and People, he came the first great Legate from Rome to confirm the Doctrine, and establish the Church. This is called in Scripture the destroying the Kingdom of Darkness, and advancing the Kingdom of Christ; this has been all along represented under the Figure of killing the Dragon.

This was not indeed the first Plantation of Christianity in this Island; it was brought

George of Cappadocia. 3

brought hither by those who from the very beginning of it propagated the Faith over the whole World. But the Conquest and Devastation of the Heathen had brought this Country almost entirely under the Power of the Dragon again; and then the Knowledge of Jesus Christ was to be esteem'd a Treasure of infinite Value to us; though it did not come from Jerusalem, * which was the Mother of Christian Churches; but from Rome, and that too when the once Glorious Church there was deviated from the Apostolical Purity; yet we are ever to praise God for the Essentials of the Christian Faith which were then established

K 2 among

---

* Micah 4. 1, 2.

4 The Fiction of

among us. For we are saved by the Fundamentals of our Religion, and all these were brought to us in this Second Conversion of the Island: As to the additional Corruptions, they were not at first so important in the Time of Gregory the Great, as they afterwards continually grew to be, when that Church rais'd it self to the height of Ufurpation and Superstition.

We shall find in process of Time a Party of Monks always overthrowing our National Establishment; who being without Families, and having no Temporal Estates, were for giving up all to the Pope, upon whom they entirely depended; by these were the Romish Corruptions propagated.

This

George of Cappadocia. 5

This Party presently fell upon renversing the Actions of our George, and overthrowing the Council of Cealtide: These had the ordering of our Saxon Annals, as we are told out of the Scotichronicon; * there was a Writer appointed in every Monastery of Royal Foundation, to collect the History of every King's Reign, and by them we have this great Council call'd the Litigious Synod at Cealchythe, and not so much as the Name of George mentioned, † when they give an Account of the Legates coming hither for the holding of it. And tho' these Minutes of the Monks were afterwards look'd over K 3 by

---

* Gibson Chron. Sax. Præfat.

† Sub. An. 785.

6 The Fiction of

by some deputed by the National Councils; yet they were at last represented according to the Humour of the Times.

So that after our George had been so highly Carefs'd by Kings and People, had so gloriously Merited the Title of the English Patron, he is laid aside in Obscurity, and his Name had not now obtain'd a Renown among us, except the Legends of the East had gathered up some scatter'd Remains of the Alexandrian Heretick, and reviv'd them in the Fiction of an Original Orthodox Martyr, suppos'd to be of the same Name.

When the Barbarous Nations had destroy'd Learning, and Darknes cover'd the Face of

George of Cappadocia. 7

of the Earth, the Glorious Actions of George of Cappadocia began to shine like a Comet in the Night ; we may see how the Meteor was generated. The Arian Heresie had powerfully prevail'd in the Eastern Part of the World, and the Remainers of it were not quite extinct, till they were swallowed up by the more prevailing Delusions of Mahomet : All this while that Party kept up the Memory of their St. George ; and though he had been condemn'd and slighted in the West, yet would they not lose the Honour of their Saint.

Those Christians, who remain'd free from the Subjection to Mahomet, being benighted in Ignorance, were easily led away with any dazzling Superstition. They were not much acquainted with the Histories of former Times, but would take up any thing that they thought made for the Honour of their Religion, and would receive any new Inventions, though never so Fabulous, if they apprehended them conducing to this Design.

8 The Fiction of

At this time came in the Legendary Writers, who gratified the Humour of the Age, either by creating Saints, * such as Christopher and Catharine, who never had any real Existence; or inventing many Glorious Actions to be ascrib'd to those who had a Name in the Church,

George of Cappadocia, 9
Church, how little soever they deserv'd it.

The Credit of these Writers is now so sunk in the World, that it would be an impertinent Trouble to search narrowly into their Relations; but the Chief of them that give an Account of the Story of St. George must here be taken notice of.

As the Devil once opposed Moses by counterfeiting his Miracles, so he now attack'd the Gospel of Christ by his deluding Superstitions: The Power of our Lord Jesus had made his Religion pass like Lightning from East to West: The destroying Angel imitates his Dominion, and after the same manner carries his deluding Errors over

10 The Fiction of

over the World: Especially, having set up his Seat at Rome, the once Glorious Capital of the Empire, Power was now given him over all Kindreds, and Tongues, and Nations.

Opinions never prevail so much as when they are adorn'd with Practice; new Doctrines fly about like Lightning, when they are driven on by the Examples of some Saints of high Reputation. As the Pope could make Doctrines, so could he make Saints: And his Agents had been very defective, if being Masters of the best Learning the World then had, they could not Cheat the Ignorant Well-meaning Christians.

Italy was never at a loss for this, especially upon so great an

George of Cappadocia. II an Occasion: What was done we find by the Writings of those Ages; but above all, our Regard is in the first place due to that which was so highly valued as to be call'd the Golden Legend. * This was written about the Year 1290, by the Archbishop of Genoa, Jacobus de Voragine, so call'd, because he was reputed a Gulf of Learning. We are at present no further con-cern'd with it, than as to the Relation of St. George, which he thus dresses up.
He leaves out all that related to Alexandria, where the Arian George was Bishop, making him only a Cappadocian, as that Heretick by all Ancient History is reported to be. But he

---

* Vossius de Hist. Lat. Lib. 2. Cap. 60.

he makes up the Omission of his real Sufferings by Romancing upon his Victory over the Dragon, where he turns the Allegory of the Poisonous Serpent and Virgin Church into Matter of Fact.
The Tale runs thus :

‘ George, a Tribune, by ‘ Birth a Cappadocian, came on ‘ a certain time to the Pro‘ vince of Lybia, to a City ‘ called Silena: Near this City ‘ was a Lake like a little Sea, ‘ in which there lay a destru‘ ctive Dragon; who coming ‘ up to the Walls of the City, ‘ poison’d the Inhabitants ‘ with his Breath. This com-‘ pell’d the Citizens every ‘ Day to offer up Two Sheep ‘ to him, that they might ‘ appease his Rage. When ‘ almost

George of Cappadocia. 13

‘ almost all their Sheep were ‘ spent, they further con‘ sulted how they might con‘ tinue their Offering, which ‘ they resolv’d to do by giving ‘ but One Sheep, and adding ‘ an Humane Sacrifice to it.
‘ This they did till all their ‘ Sons and Daughters were ‘ made away, and then it ‘ came to the Lot of the ‘ King’s only Daughter to ‘ be adjudg’d to the Dragon, ‘ who obtain’d her Deliver‘ ance by the Prowess of ‘ St. George.

Though this was swallowed by the mighty Gulp of Implicit Faith, yet Humane Reason being only clouded, and not extinguish’d, it would not bear the Consideration of following Ages; and
there-

14 The Fiction of therefore in the Fourteenth Century, Nicephorus, the Son of Callistus, new Modell'd the Relation in his Ecclesiastical History Dedicated to Andronicus Palaeologus, Emperor of Con- stantinople. He wrote with a little more Judgment, and leaves out all the Roman-tick Account of the Dragon; only he retain'd the Country of Cappadocia according to the former Accounts, and confin'd all the Glorious Sufferings of the Martyr to that Place which was not the Scene of the Heresie.

He enlarges upon the Tortures which (he says) George constantly endur'd for the Sake of Christ; but he cannot forbear adding some of that paultry Stuff he pickt * out

George of Cappadocia. 15 out of the Arian Legend. His Relation is thus :

‘ * In those Times (wherein ‘ was the Persecution of Dio-‘ clesian) George the Coriphaeus ‘ of the Troop of Martyrs, ‘ and of great Name among ‘ those Holy Combatants, re‘ ceiv’d the Fruits of those ‘ Labours which he under‘ went for the Sake of Christ.
‘ He was a Young Man of ‘ Cappadocia, of excellent Beau‘ ty, whose Manhood scarce ‘ yet appear’d in his Face ; ‘ however he most valiantly ‘ underwent Martyrdom in ‘ that Contest which he ‘ maintain’d for Christ. For ‘ being apprehended, he bit‘ terly inveighed against the ‘ Demons, and derided the Im‘ piety

---

* Niceph. Callist. Lib. 7. Cap. 15.

16 The Fiction of ‘ piety of the Emperor, for ‘ which he endur’d those ‘ dreadful Torments that ‘ could not be sustain’d by ‘ the Power of Nature.

‘ For after he had lain in ‘ Prison, and been loaded ‘ with Fetters, he was torn ‘ with sharp Hooks, and ‘ burnt with hot Lime: Then ‘ he was put to the Rack, ‘ and whilst his Limbs were ‘ stretch’d out, his Flesh was ‘ cut with Daggers. Being ‘ expos’d to many such Ma‘ chines of Torture, he abun‘ dantly declar’d the Gene‘ rous Constancy of his ‘ Mind, and shew’d a Strength ‘ which was not to be over‘ come.

‘ Besides these things, he ‘ overthrew and took away
‘ the

George of Cappadocia. 17

‘ the Bull of the Impostor ‘ Glycerium, and by the Power ‘ of his Prayers recall’d ‘ Queen Alexandria from the ‘ State of the Dead, in which ‘ she had lain long. At last ‘ he was beheaded, and died ‘ like a Valiant Man: Thus ‘ he pass’d out of this Life.

Nicephorus has here chang’d the Story of St. George from a Dragon into Glycerium’s Bull, and inadvertently retain’d the Old Fiction of Queen Alexandria, whom Bede only relates to be comforted by St. George; but this Author will have her to be rais’d from the Dead: For he did not discern how George’s advancing the Arian Doctrine in Alexandria was cover’d un-

L der

18 The Fiction of

der the representation of reviving an Imperial Lady.

Besides the Narratives of St. George's Atchievements in Lybia and Cappadocia, we have other Accounts which fix him in Palestine : For when People are fond of a Story, if it will not do in one Place, the Scene of it shall be removed into another. * William of Tyre mentions the City of Lydda,
' wherein, he says, was the Glo' rious Sepulchre of the Emi' nent Martyr St. George ; who ' here, as 'tis believ'd, found
' a resting-place for that Part ' of him which was Mortal.

Our William of Malmsbury makes the Place of his Martyrdom to be very near this, which was assign'd for his Burial ;

---

* Hist. Bell. Sacr. Lib. 7. Cap. 22.

George of Cappadocia. 19
rial; and he gives this Account of it, 'That there is 'a little City call'd Rama, or
'Ramula, without a Wall,
'which was Witness to the 'Martyrdom of St. George, if 'we give Credit to Fame.

Of such dubious and uncertain Account was this Story here in England, even after the Time of the Norman Conquest. But 'twas maintain'd in the Roman Church, and therefore must come on. Let us see then what the great Pillar of the Papacy Cardinal Baronius sets forth, when their forg'd Stories began to be detected by those that reviv'd Religion and Learning.

20      The Fiction of

‘ * As for St. George, upon ‘ this Day (April 23.) all the ‘ Latines, and also the Greeks, ‘ Celebrate him in these ‘ words ; The Memory of ‘ that Holy, and Glorious, ‘ and Great, Martyr George,
 ‘ the Trophy-bearer, he was ‘ by Birth a Cappadocian, and ‘ Suffer’d under Dioclesian the ‘ Emperor. He adds.

What were the Acts of George, which had been condemn’d and rejected by Gelasius, he thinks he had found, after long search, in an Old Moth-eaten Book of the Vatican, full of Lies and Arian Stories, concerning the Conflict of George with the Magician Athanasius; where the Impious Author (as he calls him) alludes to George

---

* Baron, Martyrolog. in Georg.

George of Cappadocia. 21

George the Arian Bishop, who Usurp'd the Alexandrian See, and was the most Obstinate Persecutor of the Great Atha- nasius, who was Bishop there.

But he does not think fit to give us a Copy of the Legend; he only declares it Fabulous and Portentous, and then proceeds to Censure the Extravagancies of Simeon Me- taphrastes, Pasirates, Lipoma- nus and Jacobus de Voragine.

Though these are the great Authors, upon whom the Credit of this Roman Saint relies, and he acknowledges that they want Correction, yet he cannot but allow the Devotion which was paid at his Shrine. The Arm of this Martyr had been Illustrious for many Miracles, Et vene- randum Caput ejus ad Velum auream conservatur, his Venerable Head at the Golden Veil was laid up in a Chest by Pope Zachary, and superscrib'd with Greek Letters. Thus it was: But though Learning had discover'd the Cheat, yet Reformation ought not to take notice of it.

Dr. Heylin, a Man of vast Reading, thought himself particularly oblig'd to maintain the Reputation of this St. George of Cappadocia. After he had given an Account of several Dedications to St. George, he thus concludes: 'Not to travel further in 'this Enquiry, there is a 'St. George's Church in Bur- 'ford, * where it pleased God 'to

---

* History of St. George, Part 2. Chap. 8. Sect. 2.

George of Cappadocia. 23

‘to give me first my Na‘tural Being, and after‘wards my Education; in ‘which regard I hold my self ‘bound in a Manner to Vin‘dicate St. George’s Honour; ‘having received such Com‘forts in a Place where his ‘Memory was anciently pre‘cious, and the only Church ‘in it Dedicated to his Name.

The Dedications of our Churches are very ancient, and there is now seldom any Memorial of them left besides the Name of the Saint to whom they were Dedicated; no Character of his Person, no Account of the Place where he liv’d, of the Actions he did, or the Martyrdom he suffer’d: So that this St. George at Burford might as well be St. George of Ostia, as St. George of Cappadocia, for any thing he knew. It happen'd that this learned Person was not acquainted with our St. George; which might very well be, since he is mention'd to have been herein England only by our Old Monks, whose Judgment and Language would not invite any Man to a diligent perusal of them: And then the Roman Legate going in the last Ages by the Name of Gregory, our Saint might well escape his Cognizance.
L 4 well

The Truth is, he was affectionately concern'd not to diminish the Number of the Saints; and especially to save the Patron of this Nation from the Attempts of some learned learned Men, who would either make nothing of him, or that which is worse than nothing at all, an Arian Heretic.

George of Cappadocia. 25

He endeavours therefore not only to Establish his Being, but to Prove his Martyrdom, carrying on his Work after the manner of a Trial at Law; * where he brings in and examines all the Witnesses pro and con, sifting their Evidence: And at last, summing up a Catalogue of Sixty Vouchers, as Supporters of St. George, concludes, that he has sufficient Authority to maintain the Reputation of his Saint.

It would be very tedious to look into all these, but we may consider the most ancient,

---

* Hist. St. George, Part 2. Chap. 2. Sect. 12.

26      The Fiction of

ent, and so find how solid the ground is which he builds upon.

As for Eusebius, who is our most Ancient and Authentick Historian, he proves out of him that some of Cappadocia were real Martyrs; as Seleucus and Julian under the Persecution of Dioclesian: That many Military Men which were in Places of Honour, forsook not only their Offices, and all they had, but their very Lives for the sake of Christ: That the Historian excuses himself for not naming all that suffer'd, because it would be a tedious and endless business.

He therefore inferrs, that ‘all put together will amount

George of Cappadocia. 27

‘ mount to thus much, * That ‘ George, one of those many ‘ Martyrs whom Euse‘ bius could not name, a Cap‘ padocian by his Country, a ‘ Soldier by Profession, and ‘ one that waited at Court, ‘ was put to Death in Pa‘ lestine by Torments not to ‘ be express’d, because he ‘ constantly continued in ‘ the Faith of Christ. The ‘ Doctor having also prov’d ‘ that the Persecution rag’d in ‘ Palestine.

His next Witness is St. Am‘ brose, whose Words are, ‘ † George, the most Faithful ‘ Soldier of Jesus Christ, ‘ when as Religion was else‘ where dissembled, adven‘ tur’d

---

* Part 2. Chap. 2. Sect. 6.

† Sect. 7.

28      The Fiction of

‘tur’d boldly to confess the ‘Name of God, to whom it ‘pleased the Lord to give so ‘much of Heavenly Grace, ‘that he not only scorn’d the ‘Tyrants, but contemned ‘their Torments.

This is only a Citation which he finds in some Authors, Hermannus, Schedel, Jacobus de Voragine, Vincentius, and others. The Book in which this Sentence was contain’d, went by the Title of Liber Præfationum, not now extant.
 The Doctor confesses, that Possevin, who Marshals all the Works of St. Ambrose, even those also that were lost, makes no mention of this Tract. However, he concludes that ‘he must crave longer ‘time before he should re‘ject

George of Cappadocia. 29

ject these Words ascrib'd to St. Ambrose, or not esteem them true, and worthy to be credited; though not so fully as to build upon them altogether.

Notwithstanding Gelasius, Bishop of Rome, had condemn'd the Legend of St. George as Heretical and Ridiculous, yet the Doctor is pleased to bring him in as a Witness on his side, for though * the Story be taxed as Dangerous and Apocryphal, yet all due respect is done to the Saint.
This he says appears by that which is added to the Canon, Nos tamen cum prædicta Ecclesia, omnes Martyres, atq; eorum gloriosos agones, qui Deo magis quam hominibus noti sunt, cum

---

* See. 10.

'cum omni devotione veneramur.

Yet we, and the aforefaid Church, with all due Devotion reverence all the Martyrs and their Glorious Agonies, which are better known to God than Men.

Hence 'tis concluded, 'That ' questionless St. George is to ' be reckon'd as a Martyr,
' * because the Story only is ' condemn'd, and not the ' Saint. Just as we may re' solve that there was fuch a ' Noble Prince as Arthur, be' cause the Monk of Malmf- ' bury hath told us how much
' his Famous Deeds were over-
' acted by his Country-men,
' the Britains.

But the Doctor betrays too much Affection to his Cause by

---

* See 10.

George of Cappadocia. 31

by the forwardness of his Conclusions. All the Martyrs were to be reverenc'd with due Devotion; but here is not the least intimation that George was one of those Martyrs. Nay, the contrary is to be presum'd: For had there then been any George of Cappadocia, who suffer'd Martyrdom under Dioclesian, he must have been specified and exempted out of the Censure, otherwise the Righteous would have been condemn'd with the Wicked.

We need proceed no further in the Examination of Witnesses: If an Eminent Martyr was not known in the World Three Hundred Years after his Death, there can be no Reliance upon those Disco-

32 The Fiction of

Discoveries which are made in following Ages. And indeed 'tis inconsistent with any respect to Venerable Bede to suppose that there was any George of Cappadocia known in his Time: For would he in his Martyrology have fixed the Natalis of an Apocryphal Saint upon the 23d of April, without so much as mentioning him that was real, if there had then been any such? Surely he was well able to distinguish between Dacian the suppos'd King of Persia, and Dioclesian the Roman Emperor. Bede would never have mention'd this, which was not credited by himself; but that he was resolv'd to relate every thing of that Sort which was considerably siderably taken notice of in the World; and if he did, we need enquire no further.

George of Cappadocia. 33

'Tis certain the Ages had been labouring under the Spurious Legend of the Arian George, that they had removed the Scene from Alexandria, and at last pitch'd upon Cappadocia; but there still remain'd in all their Accounts such a Tincture of the Original, that the whole Story plainly appears to be nothing else but a Fiction, to maintain an imaginary Saint upon the Ruins of a real Heretick.

In England there seems to have been only a general Buzz about this Eastern Story, and therefore it has never been related, even by those that

M

34 The Fiction of that gave the greatest Credit to such things, without some abatement of its Credibility. The Monk of Malmsbury having occasion to mention Rama, which was reported to be the Place of St. George's Martyrdom, doubts whether any regard was to be had to common Fame. * * Ramula est civitatula, muro indiga; Beati Georgii, si famæ credimus, Martyrii conscia. Ramula, a little City without a Wall, was (if we may trust Report) witness to the Martyrdom of St. George, and takes no notice of any other St. George.

This indeed he writes in his Account of the Life of William Rufus, Three Hundred Years after George, Bishop

---

* Lib. 4. Cap. 2. de Williel. Secundo, Pag. 79.

George of Cappadocia. 35

shop of Ostia, came over hither and held the Council of Cealtide: but it was contrary to the Genius of this Monk and his Party to make any honourable mention of this King or Council; for he treats King Offa with the greatest Indignation, because of his Transactions there:

*Idem in Deum pervicax, sedem Archiepiscopatus, * olim Cantuariæ fundatam, in Lichesfeldam transferre conatus est, invidens scilicet Cantuaritis Archiepiscopatus fastigium.* He was obstinate against God, endeavouring to transfer the Seat of the Archbishoprick, which was anciently founded at Canterbury, to Lichfield, envying the

M 2

Kentish-

---

* Malmsburs. de gest. Reg. Angl. Lib. 1. Fol. 15.

36     The Fiction of

Kentishmen the honour of the Archbishoprick.

'Tis easie for a rising prevailing Party in Two or Three Hundred Years to run down those things which were once most renown'd and honour'd ; especially if they are not agreeable to the succeeding Affairs. But tho' George of Ostia seems now to be forgotten, yet the Dedication of Churches to his Name before this Time seems to be of too great moment to be derived from the little-credited Stories of the East.

However, after this those Relations of the Eastern St. George come in with the greatest Applause and Authority, for when King Richard went to the Wars for the Re-

George of Cappadocia. 37

Recovery of the Holy Land, and King Edward for the Conquest of France, they had more need of a Victorious Warrior than a Reverend Bishop to be their Patron.

---

M 3 CHAP.

C H A P. II.

The Institution of the Garter derived from the Accounts of St. George in the Holy Land.

IT was necessary to premise all the Legendary Stories of St. George, because these prevail'd in the World, when the most Noble Order of the Garter was founded: And 'tis to be expected, that the Designs of Princes should run according to the Genius of the Age in which they live.

If the Darknefs and Delusion of those Times be now despis'd, yet the Consideration

tion of the Atheism and Profaneness of the later Days may make us have a greater esteem of them. We read of the Saxon Monarchs laying down their Crowns and Scepters, that they might entirely devote themselves to Religion; and of the Normans carrying their Armies into the Holy Land, that they might fight against the Enemies of Jesus Christ: And we will confess that all this was an Error; for no Person can in any Circumstances do God so much Service as a Prince upon the Throne may do. Nor were those Armies really employ'd for the promoting the Christian Religion, but for advancing the Usurpations of that False

M 4 Christ,

Christ, who by this Means gain'd a greater Dominion over the Nations. They became subject to his Legates as their Chief Generals, and went backwards and forwards as might most conduce to the promoting of his Designs.

Princes and People were over-reach'd by that Man of Sin, who aim'd at nothing but to set up Tyranny and Superstition in the Church; but shall not God be merciful to the Errors of the De-luded? If our hearty Friends mistake our Interest, and do those things which we have just Cause to be displeas'd at, yet we have a Love and Pity for them, because we are assur'd of their Good-will.

But

But certainly the Divine Justice must much more highly resent those Efforts which are made against the true Religion, now 'tis deliver'd from the Old Impostors; they shall feel the weight of his Wrath, who under pretence of Popery would run down Christ and his Apostles for setting up Priestcraft in the World.

The Arms of many now call'd Christians, have been as ill employed as their Arguments: We may applaud those Soldiers who wore the Cross upon their Backs as the Badge of their Devotion to Christ, and with a Pious Intention march'd as far as Palestine to venture their Lives for his Service; but but 'tis to the Amazement of Humane Nature, as well as of a Christian Spirit, that Soldiers called Catholicks, should with unheard-of Cruelties destroy the Faithful Servants of Christ in their own Country, and then join with Turks for the devouring all Christendom.

42 The Institution

This will certainly keep us from despising our Forefathers, whose Impieties were never grown to such an height. By such a Comparison, the little Roman Tricks to raise the Courage of an Army seem Innocent; for the good Intention of destroying Mahomet stands in direct Opposition to the advancing his Empire.

If

If St. George may be allow'd to have been a Martyr in Cappadocia under the Persecution of Dioclesian, Dr. Heylin will very freely confess all the Shams that were made in his Name at the time of the Holy War; * and he gives us a very good Account of them.

That Peter the Hermit was cunningly set a work by Pope Urban II. who by employing so many Princes in his Wars, foresaw a Way to bring the Roman Prelates to their so much expected Greatness. The Princes of most Note who put themselves into the Action, were Robert, Duke of Normandy, Brother to William Rufus, King of England, Hugh, Bro-

---

* Hist. St. George, Part 2. Chap. 6.

44 The Institution

Brother to the King of France, Godfrey of Bouillon, Duke of Lorain, with his Two Brothers, Baldwin and Eustace; Tancred and Beomond, Two Noble Normans of the Kingdom of Naples, with him that might have been reckoned first, Ademar, a French Bishop, the Pope's Legate.

The Army which attended them amounted to no less than 30000 Fighting Men;
 the Time of this Expedition, Anno 1096, or thereabouts; their Fortune so successful, that they expell'd the Turks out of all Asia the Less, compelling them into the Eastern Parts of their Dominions.

Having no Enemy at their Backs, they passed the Streights of Taurus, and entring into Syria,

Syria, which they quickly Master'd, they fate them down at last before the Famous City of Antioch; a Place of Chief Importance for the Assurance of their New Conquests, and therefore very much desir'd.

This Famous City, after a long and painful Siege, was at last rendred to them: And the Defence thereof, together with a large and spacious Territory, committed to Prince Boemond: But as they rested here for the refreshing of their Troops, extreamly weakned in that tedious and lingering Leaguer, they were themselves besieged by a huge Multitude of Enemies; who, though they came too late to raise the Siege,

46 The Institution

Siege, were yet persuaded that they came time enough to redeem the Town.

This Siege they kept so streight, that they within not looking to be so invested, became in a short space utterly disheartned; their Store of Corn consumed; their Horses dying every Day for want of Fodder; themselves continually diminished, and fore spent by Want and Sicknes.

No other Means of Safety left, they resolv'd to put it all upon the Fortune of a Battel; which Battel had they lost, there had been an end of all their Undertakings. But out they must; a few weak Men against a Multi-

Multitude of able Soldiers, well Hors'd, and full of Courage.

Let us suppose the Battel join'd, and we will take the rest out of Robertus Monachus, a Benedictine of the Monastery of Rhemes, who flourished in the Year 1120, and wrote this Story, in which he gives us the following Relation.

* * Dum sic certatur, & tam
'longi certaminis prolixitas nostros
'fatigabat, nec numerus hostium
'videretur decrescere; albatorum
'militum innumerabilis exercitus
'visus est de montibus descendere,
'quorum signifer & duces esse di-'cuntur, Georgius, Mauritius, De'metrius: quos ut primum vidit
'Podiensis Episcopus, exclamavit
'magna

---

* De Christian. Princip. bello. Lib. 7.

48 The Institution

‘ magna voce, dicens, O milites, ‘ ecce vobis venit auxilium quod ‘ promisit Deus.

The Soldiers being wearied with the long continuance of the Battel, and seeing that the Number of the Enemies decreased not, began to faint, when suddenly an innumerable Army of Soldiers all in white was seen to come down from the Mountains; the Leaders of them are said to be George, Maurice, and Demetrius. Which when Ade-mar the French Bishop of la Puy first beheld, he cried out unto his Troops, These are the Succours which God promised for your Assistance.

The Issue of the Miracle was this, that presently the Enemies did turn their Backs, and lost the Field ; there being slain upon the Place 100000 Horse, besides Foot innumerable in their Trenches ; such infinite Store of Victuals and Munition taken, that served not only to refresh the wearied Christians, but to confound the Enemy. This Memorable Field is generally reported to be fought upon St. Peter's Eve, Anno 1098.
and

My Author adds, That if this may be believ'd, this were enough for ever to entitle St. George unto the general Patronage of Christianity ; and yet there is one Testimony yet to come. A Testimony (as he says) he met with in Jacobus de Voragine, whom, though he dare not N trust

50 The Institution

trust upon his own Word, yet he will give him leave to report what another affirms.

* *Legitur in Historia Antiochena, quod cum Christiani pergerent ad obsidendum Hierusalem, quidam juvenis speciosissimus apparuit sacerdoti cuidam, qui S. Georgium ducem Christi se esse dicens, monuit ut ejus reliquias secum in Hierusalem deportarent, & ipse cum iis esset. Cum autem Hierusalem obsedissent, & Saracenis resistentibus per scalas ascendere non auderent; Beatus Georgius armis albis indutus, & cruce rubra insignitus apparuit, innuens ut post se securi ascende-rent, & civitatem obtinerent.
Qui ex hoc animati civitatem ceperunt, & Saracenos occidere.*

'Tis

---

* Hist. Lombard. in Georgio.

'Tis read in the Antiochian History, that when the Christians went to Besiege Jerusalem, a most Beautiful Young Man appear'd to a certain Priest, who saying that he was St. George, Christ's Captain, admonished them to carry along with them his Relicks into Jerusalem, and that he would be with them. As they were Besieging Jerusalem, and the Saracens made much Resistance, that they durst not mount their Scaling Ladders, St. George cloathed in white Armour, and made more remarkable by a red Cross, appear'd to them, and gave them to know, that they might safely mount the Walls after him, and take the City. Who being ani-

N 2 mated

52 The Institution

mated by this, got Possession of the City, and Slew the Saracens.

This Story was so well managed, that 'twas received by Godfrey and the rest of the Princes with the greatest Applause; infomuch that they raised Lydda, Famous for the Tomb of St. George, to the Dignity of an Episcopal See.
As we are told by a better Historian, William of Tyre, who wrote about the Year 1180. * Primitias laborum suo- rum, cum omni devotione, egregio Martyri dedicantes. With all Devotion Consecrating the First Fruits of their Labours to that Glorious Martyr.

Upon the same Account was a Tower in the City Antioch,

---

* Will. Tyr. Lib. 7. Cap. 22.

Antioch, formerly call'd the Two Sisters, now honoured with the Name of St. George's Tower.

But it most concerns us to see how these things were related in England. The Pulse beats according to the Motion of the Heart, and we shall find that which Rome was full of, was poured into our Veins: The Monks wrote and preach'd the Merits of the Holy War, for nothing more advanced their Power and Wealth. However faintly before they gave an Account of St. George, as an uncertain Report from a far Country, they now declare his Miracles from those that had seen them, and give Arguments for the assurance of their Faith. N 3 Thus

54 The Institution

Thus the Monk of Malmsbury, * Persuadebant sibi videre
' antiquos Martyres, qui olim Mi-
' lites fuissent, quiq; mortis pretio
' parassent vitæ præmia; Geor-
' gium dico & Demetrium
' vexillis levatis a partibus
' montanis accurrere: Jacula in
' hostes; in se, auxilium vibran-
' tes. The Holy Combatants were persuaded, that they saw the Ancient Martyrs, who formerly had been Soldiers, and had obtain'd the Rewards of Life at the Price of their Death, particularly George and Demetrius, come with display'd Banners, and descending from the Mountainous Parts, to join our Forces, they threw their Darts against the Enemy,
 and

---

* De gest. reg. Angl. Lib. 4.

and at the same time supported our Troops.

And the Historian adds for Confirmation, ‘ Nec diffitendum est, affuisse Martyres Christianis, sicut quondam angelos Macchabæis, simili duntaxat causa pugnantibus. Nor is it to be doubted, but that the Martyrs might be present with the Christians, as well as the Angels assisted the Maccabees, since they both fought for the like Cause.

Thus was the World in general, and England particularly, inform’d in the History of St. George, when our King Richard I. about the Year 1190. went to the Wars in the Holy Land, and had occasion to make use of this Christian Champion for the Encouragement of his Soldiers.

It is not improbable that the Name of St. George was before this reverenc'd by the English Nation, which might incline him to pitch upon chiefly the Apparition of St. George, as most agreeable to their Apprehensions. No Princes nor Nations have been so fond of him as ours; which might reasonably be, if this was only the reviving of a Name Celebrated here in former Times.

The first Foundation of Instituting the most Noble Order of the Garter, Mr. Selden gives us out of an Ancient Manuscript, where after an Account of King Richard I. being engaged in a tedious Siege, whilst he manag'd the Holy War, 'tis said,
Tandem

‘ Tandem * illabente per Divi ‘ Georgii (ut opinatum est) inter-‘ ventum spiritu, venit in mentem, ‘ ut quorundam electorum militum ‘ cruribus coriaceum subfibulum, ‘ quale ad manus tunc solum habe‘ bat, indueret; quo futuræ gloriæ ‘ memores, & condicto, si vince-‘ rent ad rem fortiter & strenue ‘ gerendam expergerent, ad Ro‘ manorum instar, apud quos illa ‘ coronarum varietas, quibus variis ‘ causis donati sunt & insigniti mi‘ lites, ut his velut irritamentis ‘ excussa recordia virtus animi for‘ titudoq; pectoris fervidior exurge-‘ ret atq; exiliret.

The Book out of which Mr. Selden had this, was Entituled, Institutio Ordinis militaris a prænobili subligaculo nuncupati; and Mr. Cambden seems to have had

---

* Selden's Titles of Honour, Page 657.

58 The Institution

had the Perusal of the same, by giving us the English of what is read there: His Account is this.

‘ * William Dethick, Garter, ‘ Principal King of Arms, a ‘ Gentleman most studious in ‘ all such things as concern’d ‘ Honour, shew’d him a Book ‘ of the first Institution of ‘ the Order, where this Re‘ lation is given. King Ri- ‘ chard I. Warred upon the ‘ Turks and Saracens, Cypres ‘ and Acon, and was weary of ‘ so lingring Delay, whilst ‘ the Siege continued long in ‘ wonderful Care and Anxie‘ ty: At length, upon a Di‘ vine Inspiration, by the ‘ Coming in and Apparition ‘ (as

---

* Cambd. Britan. in Berkshire.

‘ (as was thought) of St. George, ‘ it came into his Mind to ‘ draw upon the Legs of cer‘ tain Choice Knights of his ‘ a Garter or Tach of Leather, ‘ such only as he had then ‘ ready at Hand, whereby ‘ they being distinguish’d, ‘ and put in mind of future ‘ Glory, promised to them if ‘ they won the Victory, they ‘ might be stirr’d up and pro‘ voked to perform their Ser‘ vice bravely, and fight more ‘ valiantly. In imitation of ‘ the Romans, who had such ‘ variety of Coronets, where‘ with Military Men, for di‘ vers and sundry Causes, ‘ were rewarded accordingly ; ‘ to the end, that by these In‘ stigations (as it were) ‘ Cowardize may be shaken ‘ off,

60 The Institution

‘ off, the Valour of Mind and ‘ Courage of Heart might ‘ arise and shew it self more ‘ Resolute.

Here insert the Cut of R. Edward III.

In an Age or two the Scene of our Wars was removed from the Holy Land into France, under that Valiant and Victorious Prince King Edward III. who carrying the English Arms to subdue a great Kingdom, thought nothing could be more advantageous, than to give the highest Honours to Military Atchievements, and engage his Nobles in a Society which might support the Crown by the Efforts of their Valour.

His first Business was to invite the most Eminent Warriors of Europe into his King.

EDWA ord he most

EDWARD III KING of ENGLAND FRANCE
Lord of IRELAND & Duke of Aquitain Founder of the most Noble order of the Garter ~

Kin
be ing Ye
the Ro
of W all Po en
M lip w in T
c o
v
t
i

Kingdom, and that he might be more capable of entertaining them, *He did in the Year 1344 build a House at the Castle of Windsor call'd the Round Table; the Diameter of it was 200 Foot, and the Weekly Expence which he allow'd was an Hundred Pound. So great a Confluence there was of Military Men to this Table, that Philip de Valois, King of France, was forc'd to set up one also in his own Kingdom for Treating those that would come in to his Assistance.

All our Histories are full of those Glorious Victories which our English King did then obtain; † but being once in great Distress at the Town of

---

* Walsingham Vic. Ed. III.

† Walsingham Subann. 1349.

62 The Institution

of Calais, he calls upon the Saints as well as the Soldiers to help him, Ha, St. Edward, Ha St. George: And thus he undertook to advance his Arms according to the Devotion of the Times.

Nothing had been more esteem'd than the Glory of defending Christendom against the Deluge of Mahomet, and nothing could now be more honourable than those Ensigns which had therein been the Trophies of our Success. It was therefore very proper to make choice of those Garters and that Saint by which the English had already acquir'd so great a Reputation in the Days of King Richard I. The beginning of this Order is some-something variously related, and the Occasion is commonly said to be trivial; but so are many of the greatest things in the World: Princes often carry on their Designs by way of Diversion. However it was, we cannot have a better Account of it than from the Judicious Mr. Cambden.

“*King Edward III. to adorn ‘ Martial Prowess with Ho‘ nours, the Guerdon of Ver-‘ tue, ordain’d a most Noble ‘ Order and Society of ‘ Knights; whom (as some ‘ report) for his own Garter ‘ given forth, as a Signal of ‘ Battel which sped fortu‘ nately, he called Knights ‘ of the Garter; who wear ‘ on

---

* Cambden Britan. in Windsor.

‘ on their Left Leg, some‘ what under the Knee, a ‘ Blue Garter, carrying this ‘ Impress wrought with Gol‘ den Letters in French, Honi ‘ soit qui maly Pense, [Shame ‘ be to him that evil thinks] ‘ and fasten the same with a ‘ Buckle of Gold, as with the ‘ Bond of a most inward So‘ ciety, in token of Concord ‘ and Unity, that there ‘ might be among them a cer‘ tain Confociation and Com‘ munion of Vertues.

‘ But others there be that ‘ do attribute it to the Garter ‘ of the Queen, or rather Joan, ‘ Countess of Salisbury, a La‘ dy of Incomparable Beauty, ‘ which fell from her as she ‘ danc’d, and the King took ‘ up from the Floor: For ‘ when

‘ when a Number of Nobles ‘ and Gentlemen standing by ‘ laugh’d thereat, he made ‘ answer again, that shortly ‘ it should come to pass that ‘ Garter should be in high Ho‘ nour and Estimation.

’Tis not mentioned in what Battel King Edward gave forth his Garter as a Signal, but we are told by Mr. Ashmole, * That in the Year 1344 he issued out his Royal Letters of Protection for the safe coming and return of Foreign Knights to the Solemn Jufts at Windfor.

This seems to be rather for a Collection of Knights, than the Institution of the Order, which succeeded afterwards; but the Date of the Year when O it

---

* Ashmole's Garter, Page 182.

66 The Institution

it begun is not found, except in the Records of the Garter.

Mr. Cambden leaves us also in doubt from what occasion it had it's Original. 'Tis possible both Relations might be true, that the King, to make good his Complement to the Lady, might have a Garter lifted up as the Signal of Battel, and by a successful Victory give Reputation to the Ensign: But the Inscription to secure the Innocency of his Royal Thoughts, shews a plain Relation to the Courtly Adventure, which is often mixed with the Bravery of Knighthood.

However, Mr. Ashmole thinks fit to inform us, that searching into the Lineage of the Noble Family of Salisbury,
he

he finds it must be Catherine, instead of Joan, Countess of Salisbury.

For performing the Solemnities of this most Noble Order of the Garter, Mr. Cambden informs us that in Windsor Castle, * ‘there is a most ‘stately Church Consecrated ‘by King Edward III. unto ‘the Blessed Virgin, and to ‘St. George of Cappadocia : But ‘brought to that Sumptuous ‘Magnificence, which we now ‘see it carry, by King Edward ‘IV. and Sir Reginald Bray.

Here our Excellent Author was too much led aside by Common Fame; the Capadocian Saint had got such a general Name, that he did not doubt but his Country

O 2

was

---

* Britan. in Berkshire.

was mention'd in the Dedication: This we find to be a Mistake, by the Authentick Records of Windsor, * where we have both King Edward's Letters Patents for Founding St. Georges's Chapel in Windsor Castle, and Pope Clement's Bull for Empowering the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of Winchester to Institute the College of Windsor; in neither of which is Cappadocia in the least mentioned.

The Letters Patents run thus; † ‘ That whereas ’tis a ‘ good Merchandize to quit ‘ Temporal Things for the ‘ gaining of those that are ‘ Eternal, therefore the King, ‘ at his own Royal Charges, ‘ finishes

---

* Ashmole's Appendix, Numb. 1, and 2.

† Pat. An. 22. E. 3.

‘finishes the Beautiful Cha‘pel of Windsor, which his ‘Predecessors had Nobly ‘begun, to the Honour ‘of Edward the Confessor, and ‘wherein he himself was ‘Baptiz’d, Dedicating it in Ho-‘norem Omnipotentis Dei, & suæ ‘genetricis Mariæ, Virginis Glorio- ‘sæ, Sanctorumq; Georgii Martyris ‘& Edwardi Confessoris. To the Honour of Almighty God, and his Mother Mary, the Glorious Virgin, and to the Saints, George the Martyr, and Edward the Confessor.

The Pope’s Rescript is exactly in the same Terms: So that it either was not the Custom to mention the Countries of their Saints in their Dedications, or else the learned were not satisfied that

70      The Institution

Cappadocia was the Country of our St. George. 'Tis plain that King Edward and his Progenitors were addicted to an English Saint, by their Choice of Edward the Confessor; and it is possible there might be some Glimmering Remainers of the Transactions of George of Ostia here, which might make our Princes fond of the Name.

There is also a Manuscript containing the Constitutions of a Guild at Chichester Anno 1368. “* Ad honorem sanctæ Trinitatis, suiq; gloriosi Martyris Georgii Anglorum Protectoris & Patroni. To the Honour of the Holy Trinity, and their Glorious Martyr George, Protector and Patron of

---

* Selden's Titles of Honour, Part 2, Chap. 5. P. 670.

of the English. By which we see that in the most Solemn Acknowledgments of him, there was no mention made of Cappadocia.

The next Conquering Prince that set out from England was Henry V. Being resolv'd upon the Recovery of his Dominions in France, he excites the Courage of his Soldiers as Edward III. had done, by the Glory of St. George, and advances his Festival to a double Honour; ‘Ad festum ‘duplex, ad modum majoris dupli- ‘cis. Linwood says, ‘Hæc ‘constitutio fuit Henrici Chichely, ‘Archepiscopi Catuariensis, qui ‘hanc constitutionem specialiter ‘edidit, ad excitationem regis ‘Henrici Angliæ quinti, in partes ‘Normanniæ transaturi. That O 4 Henry

72 The Institution

Henry Chicheley, Archbishop of Canterbury, made this Constitution with a special Regard to the exciting Henry V. King of England, when he was about to pass over into the Parts of Normandy.

If the Fiction of a Protecting Saint was so advantageous to animate the Soldiers in their Wars, how much more enlivening must the certain Knowledge of the True Religion be? This alone can sustain us. There is indeed a Brutish Courage, whereby a Man rushes like a Horse into the Battel; but the Valour which is not guided by Reason, is not agreeable to the Dignity of the Humane Nature, and if it wants an Understanding of Heaven, it is depriv'd depriv'd of the Supports of Immortality.

What can give a Rational Satisfaction when an Heroe visibly advances upon Death, but a remembrance that he is serving his God, his Prince and Country, wherein he may be sure either of a Present Protection, or an Eternal Reward ?

---

CHAP.

C H A P. III.

Of the Devotions to Saint George, and the Opinion which the World had of them.

WHen the Legendary Writers prevail'd , and the Memory of St. George of Cappadocia was Celebrated by the full Cry of Authors all over the World , the Nations run in with a mighty Devotion to him ; and first in the East, which was the Scene of this St. George's Actions ; where we find the whole Story of this Glorious Knight and his Horse received with so great Admiration , that those

those of the chiefeſt Authority and Learning had an extravagant Opinion of it. If they did not abuſe the Senſeleſs Devotion of the Age to promote their Political Deſigns.

Nicephorus Gregoras, in the Byzantine Hiſtory, relates, that in the Palace of the Emperor Andronicus Palæologus, about the Year 1300, as the Soldiers of the Guard were retiring to their Apartments, there was in the Night-time a ſtrange Neighing of Horſes heard all about the Court; at laſt it reach'd the Emperor's Chamber, who preſently ſent a Servant to know what the Matter was. But there could no Horſes be found, they having been carried ried in the Evening a great way off to the Stables. After diligent search it was concluded that the Neighing did proceed from a Horse which Paul an excellent Limner had painted upon the Wall of the Palace, just before the Chappel of the Victorious Mother of God, upon which Horse St. George was most Gloriously Mounted.

76 The Devotions

The Emperor sends to Theodorus, Chancellor of the Empire, to know what he thought to be the meaning of it. To which that Great Officer gave this Answer: That he did congratulate the Emperor in a happy Omen of future Triumphs. The Emperor told him, he took it only as a Complement from him, him, because he did not know the Reality of the Prefage; but that when Baldwin, the Emperor of the Latins, was beaten out of Constantinople by his Father, this Horse Neighed after the same manner.

But Lying Greece could not outdo Superstitious Rome, which adopted all the Fables of the World to encrease the Number and Merit of their Saints. Particularly the Warlike Part of the World had Three Heavenly Patrons assign'd them to depend upon; as Baronius informs us out of the Roman Ceremonial. ‘ * Romanam Eccle- ‘ siam ad expugandos fidei hostes, ‘ hos præcipue Martyres invocare ‘ con-

---

* De Divinis Officiis.

78 The Devotions

‘consuevisse Mauritium, Sebastia-
‘num & Georgium. The Roman Church is especially accustomed to invoke these Martyrs for overthrowing the Enemies of the Faith, viz. Maurice, Sebastian, and George.

Dr. Heylin gives us an Account, * That this Maurice was one of the Chieftains of the Theban Legion Slaughtered by Maximinianus in his Expedition towards Britain; and that Sebastian was a Commander under Dioclesian; whose Days are found in the Roman Martyrology upon September 22. and January 20. He thinks that George, being found in so good Company, may very well go for a Saint. But if there be no better Authorities than than are yet found, they will not be much esteem'd among us.

---

* Hist. St. George, Part 2. Chap. 6.

'Tis a vast Prejudice to Religion to be loaded with such Fooleries, or abused by such Shams; for however the World may be benighted in Ignorance, yet by the Divine Providence the Morning will return, and then Truth alone will be able to shew her Face. Those things which were the Frauds of the Learned, and the Amusements of the Vulgar, will then appear in their own Colours; their Absurdity will then be seen into, as both dishonourable to God, and odious to Men.

It was an intolerable Injury to our Great Mediator to introduce his Creatures as Part-

80 The Devotions

Partners in his high Office; but to Sollicite Heaven with the Fictions of a Romance, to make our Addresses to one, of whom we cannot be assured, that he ever had any Being, exceeds all the Raveries of the Heathen: For their Secondary Gods were really Men Famous in Ancient Times. Yet this was done, for England was under the Dominion of Rome; and therefore before the Reformation, we must expect to find the same Devotions to St. George among us, which are contain'd in the Authentick Misals of that corrupted Church. In the Office for his Day we have this Prayer.

‘ Deus

to St. George. 81

‘ * Deus, qui nos Beati Georgii ‘ Martyris tui meritis & intercessio-‘ ne Lætificas, concede propitius; ‘ ut qui tua, per eum, beneficia ‘ poscimus, dono tuæ gratiæ conse-‘ quamur, per Dominum nostrum.

O God, who makest us joyful by the Merits and Intercession of thy Martyr Saint George, be thou propitious in hearing us; that we, who for his sake beg thy Benefits, may by the Gift of thy Grace obtain them through our Lord.

After the Offering this Devotion is added ;

‘ Munera , Domine , oblata ‘ sanctifica, & intercedente Beato ‘ Martyre tuo, nos per hæc, pecca-‘ torum nostrorum maculis emunda, ‘ per Dominum nostrum. Sanctifie,

P

O

82 The Devotions

O Lord, these Gifts which are offer'd; and thy Blessed Martyr interceding, cleanse us by these from the Spots of our Sins, through our Lord.

The Office in the Post-Communion runs thus;

Supplices terrogamus, omnipotens Deus, ut quos tuis reficis Sacramentis, intercedente Beato Georgio Martyre tuo, tibi etiam placitis moribus dignanter tribuas inservire per Dominum nostrum.

We thy Supplicants beseech thee, Almighty God, that those, whom thou refreshest with thy Sacraments, Saint George thy Martyr interceeding, thou wouldest enable worthily to serve thee in those Courses which are well pleasing, through our Lord.

There

to St. George.

83

There is also an Old Book called Horæ B. Mariæ Secundum usum Sarum, * which Dr. Heylin says he had in his Custody, where we have this Hymn to the Saint and Martyr.

O Georgi Martyr inclyte, Te decet Laus & Gloria, Prædotatum militia.

Per quem puella Regia Existens in tristitia, Coram Dracone pessimo, Salvata est. Ex animo

Te rogamus, corde intimo, Ut cunctis cum fidelibus, Cæli jungamur civibus, Nostris ablutis sordibus:

Et simul cum Lætitia Tecum simus in gloria;
Nostraq; reddant labia, Laudes Christo cum gratia, Cui sit Honos in sæcula.

P 2

O

---

* Hist. St. George, Page 92.

O George, the Famous Martyr, Praise and Glory do attend Thee, adorn'd with Victory.
By whom the Royal Maid, Under Despair, before the fierce Devouring Dragon,
Was sav'd. Sincerely,
And with a Pious Mind,
We pray to thee,
That with the Faithful Citizens of Heaven
We may be join'd, being washt From our Pollutions.
And that with Joy we may In Glory be with thee;
That our Lips, filled with Grace,
May give Praises to Christ,
To whom Eternal Honour's due.

This

This Hymn contains the Story of St. George and the Dragon, and the King's Daughter, without the least Intimation of an Allegorical meaning: So that the grossest Forgery was the ground of this Superstitious Devotion. This awaken'd all the learned Foreigners, whether Lutherans or Calvinists, to cry out against our English Saint; and upon Examination they find that he was a meer Chimæra, so that it must needs be a very ridiculous Worship, which was offer'd to a Non Ens. Upon this, Canisius the Jesuit makes a heavy Complaint: * Luther, Calvin, Melancton, and other Sectaries, will not allow the most No-
P 3 ble

---

* De Maria Virgine, Lib. 5. Cap. 19.

ble Martyr George a Place among Men, or that he had any Existence in Nature.

But Bellarmino maintains,
That there was such a Holy Martyr as St. George, though he did not kill the Dragon.

* The History of St. George might be numbred by Gela- sius among the Apocryphal Writings, and yet St. George himself may be worshipped; because the Custom of the Universal Church approves it, and the Memory of George was always Celebrated.

To which our learned Dr. John Rainolds answers; † That the Memory of George might indeed be very Famous, as Cicero says, the Memory

---

* De Eccles. Triumph. Lib. I. Cap. 20.

† De Roman. Eccles. Idolatr. Lib. I. Cap. 1. Sect. 21.

'mory of Cataline was Cele'brated by the worst of Men,
 'and the Enemies of their 'Country. But his Fame
 'was rather great, than good:
 'For Athanasius and Gregory
 'Nazianzen testifie, that George
 'the Cappadocian was a wicked
 'Man, and an Arian Heretick;
 'bad by Descent, but worse
 'by Disposition: He was 'sent by Constantius with a 'Troop of Soldiers to Alexan- 'dria, and there took upon 'him to be Bishop of that Ci'ty. He was afterwards wor'shipped by some as a Martyr,
 'who are deservedly reprov'd
 'by Epiphanius. But however,
 'he was worshipped, and in 'process of Time the Martyr'dom of George was composed
 'and published by his Fol'lowers.

88 The Devotions

Upon a full Consideration of the whole Affair this learned Man thus gives us his Opinion; ‘ * That ’tis ‘ plain there never was any ‘ such Person [as the Saint ‘ now worshipped] by the Si‘ lence of all approv’d Au‘ thors, and such Historians ‘ as deserve Credit.

This great Doctor of our Church does therefore address himself, ‘ † to those Illu‘ strious Heroes of this Order, ‘ who bear the Ensign of ‘ George killing the Dragon; ‘ that being better learned, ‘ they should not understand ‘ it, as relating to George of ‘ Cappadocia, but as containing ‘ a Symbolical Representa‘ tion,

---

* See 20.

† See 22.

‘ tion, whereby they are ‘ admonished and incited, ‘ that as Princes of the Socie‘ ty, from which George de‘ rives his Name, they would ‘ fight against the Dragon and ‘ the Beast, * who has Horns ‘ like a Lamb, but speaks like ‘ a Dragon, that is, the Roman ‘ Antichrist; which the Au‘ thor of this Order did, † by ‘ cutting off some of the ‘ Heads of this Hydra, and as ‘ has been done more effect-‘ ally by his Successors.

We are indeed to begin our holy War before the Devil got up to the Pinnacle of the Temple; it commenc’d in Paradise between our First Parents and the immortal Enemy

---

* Θεὸς γεώργιον Θεὸς διχοδομήσει. 1 Cor. 3. 9.

† Edward III. Ann. Regn. 25, 27, & 38.

my of Mankind, and has run through all the Ages of the Church; but the Victory was never accomplish'd till our Blessed Lord triumph'd over Death and Hell: This the Apostles and their Successors carried over the World. But still the Tyrant held an external Dominion till Constantine the Great drove him both from the Temple and the Throne, and brought the Temporal Power to fight against the Spiritual Enemy.

From this time the Allegory of fighting and killing the Dragon has been taken up, even by those Nations which had no particular Relation to any St. George. But then the Devil having again changed his Shape, and under another another Figure got into the Temple of God, they fought for that Enemy, which they were made to believe they fought against, by which means our Saviour's Prophecy was accomplish'd: The time cometh that whosoever killeth you, will think that he doth God service, John 16. 1.

The learned *Dr. Heylin has given us Instances to this purpose: That Sigismund the Emperor and King of Hungary did erect an Order of Knighthood, which he entituled of the Dragon. He had been fortunate in several Battels against the greatest Enemies of Christ, the Turks; and had also laboured with much diligence to ruin and sup-suppress the Hussites, the greatest Enemies of the Roman Church then being; whereof he was Protector.

---

* Hist. St. George, Part 1. Chap. 5. Sect. 6.

92 The Devotions

This last he did, not only by Persecutions privately, and Force of Arms in publick, but by procuring Two Councils of Basil and Constance to be Assembled; where the poor Hussites were condemn'd (their Cause being unheard) and the Chief Patrons of it adjudged to the Fire.

Proud of this fortunate Success in these great Enterprizes, he Instituted the Military Order of the Dragon; so call'd, because his Knights did bear for their Device 'A Dragon falling headlong: ' Pour tesmoigner que par son moyen ' le Schisme & l'Herésie, Dragons ' devorans

‘devorans de la Religion, avoyent, ‘este vaincus, & supplantéz. To witness that by his Means Schism and Heresie, the Dragons that devour’d Religion, had been supplanted and vanquished.

And this (saith he * that made the Book entituled, ‘Les ‘Estats du Monde, the States of the World, Translated since by Grimston) to testifie that by his Means the Dragons of He-resie and Schism, which otherwise (no doubt as he thought) had destroy’d Religion, and devoured the Church, were vanquished and suppressed.

Much like this in the Device, is the French Order Dedicated to St. Michael, instituted

94 The Devotions

tuted by King Lewis XI. not long after, Anno, viz. 1469, Unto the Collar of which Order there is fasten'd the Picture of St. Michael the Arch-Angel combating with the Dragon of the Infernal Deeps : ‘ Aureaq; imagine sancti Michaelis Draconem infernalem prostermentis, pectus insigniente. A Golden Image of St. Michael subduing the Infernal Dragon ennobled the Breast of the Knight. * So saith Hospinian. But this may have a better Reference to the Encounter of St. Michael with the Dragon in the Apocalypse.

However other Princes managed that which they suppos'd to be the Contest with the Dragon, yet here in

---

* De Origine Monach.

in England Edw. III. who Founded the most Noble Society upon the Emblem of S. George's Victory, stopt the Course of the Apocalyptrick Dragon, and would not endure to see his Kingdom enslav'd by him.

In those Statutes which Dr. Rainolds quoted, 25 Edw. III. St. 6. this Prince restrain'd the Bishop of Rome from encroaching upon the Presentations to Benefices, which that Foreign Usurp'd Power was wont to bestow upon Cardinals, and other such Aliens. 27. Edw. III. Stat. 1. he stopt the Proceedings of the Court of Rome, as being in Prejudice and Dishonour of our Sovereign Lord the King; which if permitted, would undo and destroy the Com-

96 The Devotions

Common Law of the Land. So that 38 Edw. III. all Citations to Rome were forbid, as blemishing and confounding the Laws and Franchises of the Realm, abating the Crown of our Lord the King, carrying away the Treasure and Riches of the Nation. And therefore though the Ceremonial of the Order run according to the Superstition of the Times; yet the Royal Founder himself was very far from having a mind to give his Power to the Beast.

* For bringing this Order into a more perfect Constitution, it was ordain'd at the beginning, ' That † as the ' Kings of this Realm, immediately

---

* Ashmole's Garter, Page 194.

† Lib. R. Page 119, and 122.

‘diately at their attaining the ‘Crown, do become Sove‘reigns of the most Noble ‘Order of the Garter, and ‘consequently the Supreme ‘Law and Interpreters there‘of; so the Regulation of ‘the whole should be their ‘undoubted Prerogative. And ‘this hath been evidenced in ‘nothing more fully than ‘from their constant Course ‘in exercising this Power; ‘not only of Making and ‘Establishing, but Changing ‘and Altering the Laws ‘thereof: Which upon Inte‘rest of Religion, Pleasure ‘of the Sovereign, Change ‘of Times, or any other fit ‘or necessary Occasion, hath ‘from time to time been ‘done by them.

Q

‘ Upon

‘ Upon this ground was it ‘ that King Edward VI. went ‘ about to Alter and Reform ‘ such things in the prece‘ ding Statutes as seemed not ‘ consistent with the Religion ‘ he had Established in Eng‘ land. To which purpose, ‘ at a Chapter holden at ‘ Greenwich, the 23d of April, ‘ in the Third Year of his ‘ Reign, * It was agreed, ‘ That the Lord St. John, the ‘ Earl of Arundel, and Sir Wil‘ liam Paget, should peruse o‘ ver the Statutes of the Gar‘ ter, and that the same ‘ should be Reform’d, and be ‘ made agreeable to the King’s ‘ Majesty’s other Proceedings, ‘ by the Advice of the Duke ‘ of Somerset, Lord Protector,
 and

---

* Lib. XI. Page 302.

‘ and other Companions of ‘ this Noble Order.

* This is the Account the Industrious Mr. Ashmole gives of the first Endeavours to Reform the Statutes : But all that was done under King Edward, was soon undone under Philip and Mary. Wherefore we no sooner see Queen Eliz. Ascending the Throne, but shortly after on St. George’s Day, in the Second Year of her Reign, a view of the Statutes is committed to Four of the Knights Companions, the Marquess of Southampton, the Earls of Arundel and Pembroke, and the Lord Howard of Effingham: ‘ † Who were ‘ thereby empower’d to read

Q 2 ‘ over

---

* Instit. Gart. Chap. 6. Sect. 3.

† Lib. 6. Pag. 53.

‘over and consider those Sta‘tutes, which being so read ‘over and view’d, to consider ‘with a watchful Care and ‘Diligence if any of them ‘were disagreeable to the Re‘ligion, Laws, and Statutes ‘of this Realm ; and if any ‘such were found, the same ‘to be faithfully represented ‘to the Sovereign, to the ‘end that She, with the ‘Knights Companions, might ‘Establish such Decree con‘cerning them as She should ‘think fit.

Thus were Commissions continually given out by her Successors to the same purpose, that as we ever abhorr’d the Heresie of Arianism, and are deliver’d from the Superstitions of Rome, we may now

now be led by that most Noble Order to fight the Dragon in whatsoever Shape he shall appear.

The Statutes of the Order are very large, containing the Habits and Customs of those Honourable Persons which are admitted into it; these as peculiar to them are Collected from the best Authorities, and with the greatest Exactness, by Elias Ashmole, Esq; Windsor Herald at Arms, in his Account of the Institution, Laws, and Ceremonies of the most Noble Order of the Garter. Tho' these may not be of General Concern, yet the First of them, which contain the Foundation of the Order, are very well worth our Knowledge.

' To * the Honour of ' Almighty God, of the Ho' ly Glorious Virgin Mary,
 ' and of St. George the Martyr,
 ' our Sovereign Lord Ed' ward III. King of England,
 ' in the Year of his Reign af' ter the Conquest XXIII.
 ' hath Ordained, Appointed ' and Founded, a Society or ' Military Order in the Castle
 ' of Windsor after this Man' ner. In the First Place, he ' hath made himself Superior
 ' of the said Society or Or' der: His Eldest Son the ' Prince of Wales, the Duke
 ' of Lancaster, the Earl of ' Warwick, &c.

Then follow the particular Statutes.

' I. It is agreed, That the
 ' King

‘ King of England for the time ‘ being shall always be Su‘ perior of this Order of ‘ St. George, or Society of the ‘ Garter.

‘ II. It is also agreed, That ‘ none shall be chosen into ‘ the Society of this Order but ‘ such as are Generously De‘ scended; a Soldier without ‘ Reproach; for the Instituti‘ on of this Order does not ‘ admit either the Ignoble or ‘ Reprobate.

‘ III. That the foresaid ‘ XXVI. Fellow Soldiers or ‘ Companions of the Order ‘ do wear their Mantles ‘ and Garters in the said Ca‘ stle, upon the Feast, and in ‘ the Chappel of St. George, &c.

* King Henry V. Revis'd Q 4 these

these Statutes, and gave them a new Sanction: In the Preamble to them he makes the Date more plain and certain; reciting the Establishment of them by King Edward, the Third of that Name after the Conquest, and in the 23d Year of his Reign. So that we now know the very Year in which this Order was Founded. King Edward III. came to the Crown in 1326, and the Establishment was made 1349.

King Henry VIII. Enlarges and Explains the Statutes; his Preamble contains, that this Order was Founded for the Stability and Encrease of the Catholick Faith, the Encrease of Good Manners, and the Exercise of all Sorts of Vertue. But

But more especially does he Paraphrase upon the Second Statute: 'That none
' be Chose a Companion of the ' Order, unless by Name,
' Arms and Blood, he be Gene' rous, and a Knight with' out Reproach; and that no
' Colleague of the Order, when ' there is an Election, name
' any Person whom he does ' not think in his Heart to ' be without a Note of In' famy.

' One Generous by Name,
' Arms and Blood, is to be ' understood such a Person,
' who besides his Father and ' Mother, has Grand-fathers
' and Great-grand-fathers of ' Generous Blood.

' Such an one is to be judg'd irre-

‘irreprehensible, and with‘out a Mark of Infamy, who ‘cannot be proved blamable ‘in any one of these Three ‘following Particulars.

‘1. The First Sort is, if ‘any Knight should be con‘demn’d for Heretical Pravi‘ty : That he departs from ‘the Catholick Faith, or hath ‘undergone any Publick Pu‘nishment upon that Ac‘count.

‘2. If he be Convicted of Treason.

‘3. If he has fled out of ‘Battel, when either the So‘vereign, or one appointed ‘by him, bearing his Autho‘rity, shall have display’d the ‘Ensigns, and begun the Fight.
‘He who so basely flies away ‘de-

‘ deserves a Mark of Infamy, ‘ and ought never to be Cho‘ sen into the Order. And if ‘ it happen (which God for‘ bid) that any one already ‘ Chosen should be guilty of ‘ such an Ignominious Action, ‘ let him (as he deserves) be ‘ Deposed from the Order at ‘ the Celebration of the next ‘ Chapter, or as shall seem ‘ good to the Sovereign and ‘ Society.

There is an Excellent Ancient Form of Admonition used at the Investiture of Knights Subjects with the Garter, Surcoat, Mantle, and Collar, in old French, which is worth Translating. La Soveraigne, &c.

‘ * The

‘ * The Sovereign and Ami‘ cable Company of the ‘ Knights of the Order of the ‘ Garter have Chosen and Re‘ ceived you for their Friend, ‘ Brother, and Companion; ‘ and in Sign and Cognizance ‘ thereof present and give ‘ you this Garter; which ‘ God grant you may receive ‘ and wear to the Honour ‘ of this Noble Order and ‘ your Self.

‘ Take this Surcoat as an ‘ Addition to your Honour, ‘ and in Token that you have ‘ received this Order. And ‘ by this consider, that you ‘ are not only Boldly and Va‘ liantly to Fight, but also ‘ without fear to shed your ‘ Blood

‘ Blood in Defence of the ‘ Christian Faith, of the Li‘ berty of the Holy Church, ‘ of Justice, and of those who ‘ are Oppressed and in Necessi‘ ty.

‘ Take this Mantle of the ‘ most Noble Order for an ‘ Augmentation of your Ho‘ nour : Which Mantle being ‘ Embroidered with an Escu‘ chion Charged with a Red ‘ Cross, admonishes you, that ‘ Arm’d with bright Vertue, ‘ you shall pierce your Ene‘ mies, and confound them ; ‘ that after you have by ‘ Worthy and Noble Actions ‘ finished the Warfare of this ‘ World, you may attain the ‘ Eternal and Triumphant ‘ Joys of Heaven.

‘ You

' You shall wear this Col' lar with the Image of Saint
' George, to the Encrease of ' your Honour, and the Ho' nour of this most Noble
' Order: Hence learn to Mo' derate Prosperity, and to ' Endure Adversity, that ha' ving Valiantly pass'd thro'
' every Condition of Life,
' you may here obtain the ' Renown of a Noble and ' Couragious Knight, and
' hereafter receive the Eter' nal Reward of your Victo' rious Labours.

These Statutes and this Admonition chiefly aim at the Promoting of Religion and Vertue, which is the true Design of this most Honourable Society, and therefore we

to St. George. III

we cannot acknowledge any Devotions due to St. George, but what are consistent with this Great End. We are Engaged against the Heresie of the Arian George of Alexandria; we Renounce all the Superstitions which belong to the Fictitious George of Cappadocia; and we adhere only to the true Nicene Faith, which George of Ostia came to Establish in this Nation: This, with such Vertuous Actions as may adorn our Christian Profession, deserves the Patronage of the Noblest Heroes in this and other Kingdoms.

We will therefore conclude with the Names of those most Honourable Persons, who at this time make up such

such a Glorious Society, which are by the Providence of God raised up to be the Exemplary Promoters of Piety and Vertue among us.

Here insert the Cut of St. George's Chappel in Windsor Castle.

Their Number is appointed to be Six and Twenty; their Stalls in the Chappel of Windsor are placed directly over against one another: Two there are at the Head of each Side; that on the Right Hand for the Sovereign of the Order, that on the Left for the King's Eldest Son. The former of these is now filled by our Pious and Vertuous Queen Anne, the other is at present Vacant; the Sins of this Nation having

the High rights Canons
Pety Can Chorist
Ums K Sover

The High Altar.

Knights Companions Stalls.

Canons Stalls in absence of 4 Knights. 9. Plates of their Armes and Styles.

Petty Canons and Vicars Stalls.

Choristers Seats.

Alms Knights Chaires.

Sovereign Stall.

7. Knights Companions Banners.

8. Their Helmes Crests, and Swords.

9. Plates of their Armes and Styles.

10. Queens Closet.

11. Closet for Ladies.

12. East Window of the Chaire.

14 Prince of Wales Stall.

having deprived us of that noble Prince, who was very great taking possession of The rest of the most noble Knights-Companions followed in their Order had ho ry it.

No fol

to St. George. 113

having depriv'd us of that hopeful Prince, who was very near taking Possession of it. The rest of the most Noble Knights-Companions
follow in their Order.

I. Duke of Burgundy. II. Duke of

III. Duke of Brabant. IV. Duke of

V. Duke of Limburg. VI. Duke of

VII. Duke of Luxembourg. VIII. Duke of

IX. Duke of Brabant. X. Duke of

XI. Duke of Brabant. XII. Duke of

XIII. Duke of Brabant. XIV. Duke of

XV. Duke of Brabant. XVI. Duke of

XVII. Duke of Brabant. XVIII. Duke of

XIX. Duke of Brabant. XX. Duke of

XXI. Duke of Brabant. XXII. Duke of

XXIII. Duke of Brabant. XXIV. Duke of

XXV. Duke of Brabant. XXVI. Duke of

FINIS

A S C H E M E Of the SOVEREIGN,

And Knights-Companions of the most Noble Order of the Garter.

I. Queen Anne, Sovereign. II. Vacant.

III. King of Prussia

IV. Pr. George of Denmark.

V. Duke of Cell.

VI. Duke of Hanover.

VII. Duke of Normanby.

VIII. Duke of Southampton.

IX. Duke of Richmond.

X. Duke of Leeds,

XI. D. of Northumberland.

XII. Duke of Somerset.

XIII. Earl of Feversham.

XIV. Earl of Rochester.

XV. Duke of Ormond.

XVI. Duke of Devonshire.

XVII. Earl of Dorset.

XVIII. D. of Shrewsbury.

XIX. Earl of Portland.

XX. Duke of Newcastle.

XXI. Earl of Pembroke.

XXII. Earl of Albemarle.

XXIII. Duke of Queensbury.

XXIV Duke of Bedford.

XXV. D of Marlborough.

XXVI. Duke of Schonberg.

F I N I S.

Advertisement.

That all Sorts of Bibles and Common-Prayers, Testaments, Grammars, and most School-Books, both Second-hand and
New; and also Bibles with Cutts curiously Bound, and Setts of Cutts for the Bibles in Folio, Quarto, and Octavo, to be Sold with the Bibles or without, by Nathanael Dancer, Bookseller, next St. Dunstan's-Church in Fleetstreet.

Advertisement.

That all Sorts of Bibles and Common-Prayers, Testa-
ments, Grammars, and most School-Books, both Second-hand and
New; and also Bibles with Cutts curiously Bound, and Sets of Cutts for the Bibles in Folio,
Quarto, and Octavo, to be Sold with the Bibles or without,
by Nathaniel Dancer, Bookseller,
next St. Dunstan's Church in Fleetstreet.

